BELIEVE IT

Chevrolet is the lowest priced car having the silent shift, Synchro-Mesh transmission. The Synchro-Mesh transmission is a refinement of the high price field. It was originally used by Cadillac, because Cadillac owners demanded the best and could afford to pay for such devices to make driving safer and more pleasant. Owners of low priced cars have expected to sacrifice some such "luxury" features for a price advantage. Now, Chevrolet, with its enormous power of volume has been able to adapt the Synchro-Mesh transmission and bring to Chevrolet owners one more feature of fine car design.

IN THE 1932 CHEVROLET THERE ARE MANY VALUES. MANY IMPROVEMENTS NEVER OFFERED AT CHEVROLET PRICES. BUILT IN SMOOTHNESS. INCREASED POWER. A SILENT SYNCHRO-MESH GEAR SHIFT. CONTROLLABLE COASTING WHEN YOU WISH IT. ALL AT NO INCREASE IN PRICE.

HARBIN FLOOD DISASTER

Victims Pinned In Hotel Ruins.

RIVER STILL RISING.

Demands For Relief
Cannot Be Met.

Harbin, Yesterday.
An unknown number of persons were trapped in the New World Hotel when it collapsed, its foundations undermined by the constantly rising flood waters. Scenes of horror and desolation are common enough about the city. Fuchiaton buildings have been swept from their foundations and are destroyed, but the casualties are unknown. The New World Hotel and theatre is a four-storey structure. It was not completely demolished, but a number of victims were pinned in the debris when a section of the place suddenly fell away.

DARING DAYLIGHT ROBBERY

Armed Raiders In Wanchai Home.

WOMAN IN PARTY.

A daring armed robbery took place in the heart of Wanchai in broad daylight yesterday, four men and a woman who were in the gang decamping with money and jewellery to the value of $600. The raid took place at 12.45 p.m. at No. 174, Wanchai Road, the gang gaining admittance to the first floor after one of their number had knocked on the door on the pretext of making an enquiry. They were armed with revolvers and daggers. Many people were on the floor where the robbery took place but they were held powerless while the place was ransacked, the gang making a successful escape when they had uncovered the valuables in the place.

TELLS OF INDUSTRIAL RICHES OF INTERIOR PROVINCE.

Mr. Ma Hel-wan, head of the Szechuen Arsenal, who was arrested in Canton on August 8, shortly after he had ordered 16 new aircraft in Hong Kong, was released on Thursday, and immediately proceeded to Hong Kong. He was held, he explains, on suspicion of being a Communist agent.

In an exclusive interview with the "Sunday Herald" he outlined the facts which led to his arrest and subsequent release. He also gave many sidelights on life in Szechuen province, which is controlled by four feudal lords.

Mr. Ma said that he owed his early release to the good offices of General Lei Chung-yan, immediately the latter learned that Mr. Ma was not acting under orders from the Reds, as at first imagined.

Shortly after Mr. Ma's arrest the Canton authorities got into communication with the Central Government, and the latter sent a man to Hong Kong to consult with General Chan, but before the intermediary arrived the release was effected.

Government Sanction.
It was subsequently learned that the purchase of the planes had been sanctioned by the Central Government, who had issued Mr. Ma a permit for the purpose. The planes are for use in Szechuen province, and cannot be sold to China without the approval of the Chinese Minister at Washington.

"I have been through all the formalities, and there should be no suspicion of Communism on my part," Mr. Ma said.

Rangoon, Yesterday.
A message received here late to-night says that the two British aviators, Salt and Taylor, on a private flying venture which they hoped would carry them from Malaya to England, have vanished.

They disappeared somewhere between Moulmein and Rangoon, and it is feared they have been lost at sea. They are long overdue at their destination.—Reuter.

Ed da Roza's Diving.

The Portuguese Company of the Hong Kong Volunteer Defence Corps further distinguished themselves in the V.R.C. bath last night, winning five of the seven events on the programme of the annual aquatic sports of the Corps. There was a very good attendance among those present being Lieut. Col. L. G. Bird, D.S.O., O.B.E., Officer Commanding the Corps, and many of the Officers and their lady friends.

A. Donn, who is a prominent figure in the 'Y' bath at Kowloon, made his first public appearance in the 50 yards Corps championship. Although a fast swimmer he proved no match for Gittins, W. Lawrence and E. B. da Roza. The race was swum at a great pace. On the turn, however, Lawrence

OF VITAL INTEREST.

Situation Necessarily Delicate.

Shanghai, Yesterday.
The suggestion in a Shanghai morning paper to the effect that the Foreign Office should occasionally publish information respecting Great Britain's policy with regard to British Trade and Settlement interests in China, has aroused keen interest in official quarters. It is expected that official information will be given next week as to whether such an arrangement is possible.

It was pointed out, however, that the chief obstacle to such a development, despite its usefulness to British trade and Settlement interests, is the undesirability of making public anything "in the nature of a forecast of British policy towards a foreign power." The position in the India Office, which periodically issues statements regarding British policy, is not analogous, as India is a member of the British Empire, and whereas the Anglo-Chinese relations are naturally much more delicate a matter.—Reuter.

Los Angeles, Yesterday.

The Olympic Regatta was in full swing to-day and Japan took the opportunity of registering another swimming triumph when she secured all three places in the 100-Metres Backstroke. America, however, continued in winning vein by carrying off the 400-Metres Women's Relay. Germany won the Coxed Fours, but came unplaced in the Coxed and Coxless Pairs, America winning the first event and Britain the second. Bobby Pearce, the famous Australian sculler, registered a great personal triumph when he beat Miller of the United States by three-quarters of length in the Singles. Germany found little difficulty in beating Japan by ten goals to nil in the Final of the Water Polo competition.

CANADA TO DEPORT DAN MALONE

Suspected Of Plot To Kill Thomas.

CLEAR OF CHARGE.

Toronto, Yesterday.
Although Dan. Malone, young Irishman suspected of plotting with others to assassinate Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for the Dominions, has been cleared of any real suspicions in that connection, he will be deported.

Malone was arrested in Hamilton, near here, during the visit of Imperial Conference delegates to Niagara Falls and Welland to attend the opening of the New Welland Canal. It was suspected at that time that he was implicated in a Sinn Fein plot to murder Mr. Thomas, and possibly others of the Imperial delegation.

With a number of others, Malone was arrested and charged with vagrancy. He will be deported as an "undesirable."—Reuter.

BRIDGE NOTES

A LEGACY OF WHIST. THE VIENNA COUP.

One of the most beautiful and unusual plays in Bridge owes its name to the parent game of Whist. This play is called the Vienna Coup and consists in establishing a winning card in the hands of one opponent, only to dash the cup of hope from his lips by forcing him later to discard it or unguard another suit.

The name was given this play, according to Whist history, because one of the most celebrated Whist players in Vienna, while playing a game of Double Dummy Whist, had a most unusual hand dealt to him, and upon scanning the cards he declared he could take all the tricks. His opponent, almost equally expert, differed with him and a wager was made. Thereupon the player proceeded to win his wager by means of the play which has been known ever since as the Vienna Coup. To-day's hand is an illustration of that unusual play.

Through very optimistic bidding, North and South had arrived at a contract of seven no-trump. The fact that to make this declaration it was necessary to make two successful finesses and then establish a squeeze situation by means of the Vienna Coup, illustrates that their bidding was not entirely sound. However, it is one of the virtues of a great player that he can sometimes redeem the faults in the bidding by accurate play.

West selected for his Opening lead his fourth best spade and this the Declarer won with the Ace. A diamond was led to the second round and the Knave finessed in Dummy. Now the Queen of clubs was led and this finesse also held. The Knave of clubs was next led and East refused to cover. Actually, his play here is immaterial.

It was upon the fifth lead that South made the Vienna Coup. Leading the 5 of hearts from the North hand, he made no attempt to finesse, but took the trick with the Ace in the closed hand and then laid down the Ace of clubs, upon which West was forced to discard and chose the 2 of spades. A diamond was then led and the finesse taken the second time. East failed to follow, but this made no difference, and the Ace of diamonds picked up West's King.

The two high diamonds now accounted for the ninth and tenth tricks, and on the eleventh trick West was faced with this situation.

The Ten of hearts was discarded by South but West was helpless. To discard the King of hearts would establish the Queen in the Dummy; to discard a spade would establish both spades in the closed hand.

The fortunate Declarer had corrected his over-optimistic bidding by unusual and beautiful play.

Building Up A Bid.

The business of bidding implies two separate processes—the correct interpretation of one's own cards, and the drawing of correct inferences as to the cards held by one's partner. These processes, however, are inter-dependent. Partner's bids are based, in their turn, on inferences drawn from one's own; thus at each stage, in the building up of a declaration which will best suit the two hands, the accumulated facts and inferences already disclosed are taken into account.

For example, I am Dealer, and open the bidding with one heart.

Partner registers at once the following facts:
"Culbertson has 2-1/2 honour-tricks at least. Hearts is his best suit. He has either five hearts to the K or Q J, or four to (at worst) the K or Q 10. If hearts are trumps his hand is worth at least 4 playing-tricks."

My left-hand adversary now passes and partner bids two no-trumps. I thereupon say to myself: "Partner has in all about 2-1/2 honour-tricks. He cannot have fewer, or he would only have bid one no-trump. He cannot have more because he would have made a Forcing Takeout or bid three no-trumps."

"Probably he does not care about the heart suit. If he holds adequate trump support, the distribution is such as to cause him to believe that it would play better at notrump than at a suit."

"It is improbable that he possesses a good biddable suit of his own, although that is not impossible. He might have such a suit and be able only to overcall, whereas the bid of two no-trump, if less informative, is better calculated to encourage further bidding than a mere overcall in another suit, which I might interpret as a denial of my bid."

My right-hand adversary passes, and it is my turn to bid again. I now say "three spades."

From this bid my partner draws the following inferences:
"Culbertson's hand is probably above a minimum. He is showing me, by his bid, slight additional honour values and a second suit. His spades are not as strong as his hearts, since he elected to bid the lower-valued suit first; he has probably five hearts and four spades."

"His hand is worth probably about 3 honour-tricks but he shows a willingness to play the hand for game, with the decision as to what final game contract shall be left to me."

My left-hand adversary again passes, and this time partner says "four spades." My deductions are now these:

"Partner has no new honour values to show me; he told me about those on his first bid. But spades, unlike hearts, suits his hand. With the added information disclosed by my second bid, he can count enough supporting-tricks — if spades are trumps — to give us a reasonable chance of game."

The hand is thus played at a four spade declaration. By the exchange of facts and inferences—inferences based each time upon the facts and inferences already exchanged—the most satisfactory final bid is found; the antiphonal conversation between partners is resolved in a harmonious climax. There is an esthetic as well as an intellectual satisfaction in determining in this way how best to reconcile the possibilities of the two hands.

Here is the deal upon which the above conversation is based:

CHINESE IS BEATEN WITH IRON BAR.

Assailants Charged And Fined.

Before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court yesterday, Mak 10, 21, and Wong Hong-tong, 22, were charged with assaulting one Kwong Ling, 22, and beating him with an iron bar.

Constables testified that they noticed the complainant being chased along Stanley Street by the two defendants yesterday. Wong held the man whilst Mak struck him. Wong denied that he had assisted in the assault, and claimed that he was trying to separate the combatants when he was arrested. Mak said complainant had assaulted his younger brother.

His Worship bound over all the parties in the sum of $100 for 12 months. He also imposed a fine of $25 or 3 weeks upon Mak 10, and $10 or 10 days upon Wong Hong-tong.

AN ABBOT'S LOVE ADVENTURE.

The Rausboni Monastery near Tibuchani was the stage for a terrible love drama between the Abbot and a nun of a near-by convent.

The abbot fired several shots at the nun with whom he is reported to have been in love and forced the seriously injured woman, who was about to die, to sign a letter, stating that she had committed suicide.

The abbot has escaped.

LONDON TOPICS

From Our Own Correspondence

July 20.

An Astronomical Garden Party.

Sir Frank Dyson, the Astronomer Royal, and his staff acted as hosts at a garden party at the Royal Observatory, Greenwich, on July 2. The occasion was unique, for it gave Londoners their only opportunity this season of seeing for themselves the Observatory from which the time signal is broadcast daily for the benefit of wireless listeners.

Besides the wonders of the Observatory, which were fully explained by the Astronomer Royal and his staff, other entertainment will be provided by the boys of the Royal Hospital School, Greenwich, with a hornpipe and drill display.

The Canadian Bar Association.

Viscount Halifax, the Secretary for War, and former Lord Chancellor, will, it is said, represent the Bar of England at the annual meeting of the Canadian Bar Association, to be held at Calgary, Alberta, from August 30 to September 1. Representation of the Bar of the mother country at the Canadian meeting has been customary since the historical visit of American and Canadian lawyers to this country in 1924.

It is sometimes accompanied by a cordial invitation from the American Bar Association to attend their meeting also.

This was the case last year when Sir Lynden Macassey, K.C., leader of the Parliamentary Bar, and a member of the Bar Council, attended both meetings.

A Relic of Marlborough.

Wallingwell House, Nottinghamshire, the seat of Sir Thomas Woolston White, is being converted into a super-dairy, and the contents will shortly come under the hammer at Christie's. The house was described in "The Great Houses of Nottinghamshire" by L. Jacks, as being "a museum of curiosities."

Among the contents to be sold are the trappings worn by the Duke's charger at Blenheim. The Duke presented these trappings to his old comrade in arms, Gen. John Armstrong, Governor of the Tower of London, whose daughter married into the White family.

Church Crypt's Strange Uses.

Holy Trinity Church, Gray's Inn-road, will soon be levelled to the ground, and the debris of the building, which had been in existence exactly a hundred years, will then be cleared from the crypt.

This crypt, paved with tombstones from an adjoining graveyard, was put to strange uses during the last twenty-five years the church was used for services. It was successively a book-store, wine cellar, banana-ripening store, and a night refuge for "down and outs."

The site was formerly part of Bagnidge House, where Charles II. visited "Sweet Nell of Old Drury." Mineral springs were discovered, and it became a popular London spa which existed for some years after part of the ground was acquired for the church.

Lord Craigavon's English Home.

These are anxious days for Lord Craigavon, following the latest crisis in Irish affairs. At the moment he is at his Berkshire seat at Stratley-on-Thames. He has been in touch with Belfast ever since his arrival, and messengers have been coming and going the whole time.

This is not the first occasion that Cleeve Court has been the scene of political negotiations. The last occasion was at the time of the formation of the Irish Free State, when many important discussions took place in the beautiful riverside garden.

Cleeve Court stands within a stone's throw of the river, and has a huge verandah. The outlook is most charming, for the river bank rises abruptly on the distant side approximately 60 ft. Lord Craigavon's garden is celebrated in the locality.

At Burghley House.

Lord and Lady Burghley entertained the Duke and Duchess of York recently at Burghley House, by Stamford Town, the ancestral home of the Marquises of Exeter.

Burghley House is the vast mansion, started by the famous statesman Burleigh in 1553, which was referred to in Lord Tennyson's celebrated poem of the rich landscape painter who fell in love with a girl who never suspected he was a man of eminence and position.

It is noteworthy by reason of the tower in the courtyard, which, with its combination of three classical styles, was copied from the French chateau of Anet.

The great staircase is one of the last to be decorated by mural paintings in the ancient style.

Still Flying.

Lord Halesbury, K.C., is about to take his first holiday for two years, and proposes to spend it in the South of France. For he is one of those for whom the weather can never be too hot.

During the war he joined the R.A.F., and became a pilot as long ago as 1916. To-day, at the age of 52, he still regards flying as the ideal tonic for the busy man.

On summer evenings he often goes down to one of the London aerodromes and takes up a machine for an hour or two by way of relaxation from work at the Bar and in business.

The New Lord Gladstone.

Mr. Henry Neville Gladstone, in choosing for his title "Lord Gladstone of Hawarden," shows that he will not willingly let die the name made famous by his illustrious father. But he has brought it closer to Southern Britain and farther from Scotland than ever.

The G.O.M. took some pride in tracing his ancestry on the paternal side from the Gladstones of Lanark. The first traceable ancestor was the laird of Arthursfield in 1551, whose lineal descendants held the property till the great-great-grandfather of the new peer sold it and removed to Biggar.

There are three known branches of the Gladstones, the common ancestor of whom is believed to be the Herbert de Gladstones who in 1296 swore fealty to Edward I. for lands in the county of Lanark.

Inauguration Expected Next Year.

Nanking.

It is learnt at the Ministry of Industry that inauguration of the Reconstruction Bank of China will take place on New Year's Day, 1933.

Capitalised at $10,000,000 the bank will be a joint government and mercantile enterprise with the Ministry of Industry subscribing 40 per cent. of the capital. It is understood that Overseas Chinese residing in America will co-operate in taking up the balance of $5,000,000.

CRAIGENGOWER BOWLS DOUBLE IS NOW ALMOST CERTAIN

VALLEY TEAM BEATS RECREIO RIVALS

JUNIORS MAKE SURE OF THEIR CHAMPIONSHIP

SECOND POLICE VICTORY

CIVIL SERVANTS SUFFER DEFEATS IN BOTH DIVISIONS.

The Craigengower Cricket Club are now in a very formidable position to carry off both Lawn Bowls Championships as the result of yesterday's brilliant "double" over the Club de Recreio.

In the First Division the Valley side are in a position to lose the championship to the Recreio, providing they lose their remaining three matches, which is hardly likely. In the Junior League Craigengower have already gained the upper hand and the most any team can now expect is a tie with the Valley team and the consequent play-off for the honours.

The Civil Service C.C. encountered strong opposition in both leagues and conceded points in both games in a surprising manner. The Police, encouraged by their first success in three seasons last Saturday, went a step further when they beat last year's champions in their own den. The Hong Kong Electric team, who have experienced a very lean season, also sat up and took notice at North Point to defeat the Civil Service C.C. and ruin their championship hopes.

League I.

AMAZING SCORING BY BRADBURY'S RINK.

Amass 30 Shots Before Fifteenth Head.

OMAR'S DEFEAT.

At King's Park, the Craigengower Cricket Club defeated the Club de Recreio by 24 shots.

The surprise defeat of U. M. Omar's rink by one shot and the colossal score of 35 registered by B. W. Bradbury's rink were features of this match on the Recreio green. With a lead of 8 shots on the first head, Craigengower increased it to 25 on the second, but their third rink, skipped by Omar, had to admit defeat by 1 shot after an exciting game.

The visitors' first rink, skipped by R. Bass, a former local champion, commenced well, scoring a 3 on the second head. Up to the fifteenth head, Luz's rink only managed a couple of singles whereas Bass's, scoring three 2s, three singles, a 4, and a 3, brought their total to 19, with Luz at only 6. A last-minute rally proved unavailing, and, although Luz registered scores of 2, 3, 3, he had to retire with the total at 14. Scoring three singles Bass finished up with an eight-shot lead.

Amazingly rapid scoring saw Bradbury bring his total to 21 on the 15th head, while Silva could only gather two singles, remaining lowly-placed for the next three heads. Two 2s, a 3 and a 2, brought Bradbury's total to 30 on the 15th head, but he only managed three more woods to the last head. With a total of 6 on the 18th head, Silva made a splendid recovery registering a 5 on the next head, and a 4 on the last head. The final score read 39-10.

Commencing with four single shots and a 5, Marques jumped right into the lead, and at the 10th head was leading by 10 shots to 5. Playing consistently well, Omar picked up steadily and drew level at 10-10 on the 20th head. The final head was most exciting, Marques registering the deciding shot.

Craigengower Beat Police 8 To 1.

At Happy Valley yesterday Craigengower easily won. (Ying Ming)

RIFLE SHOOTING AT KOWLOON TONG.

Pelling Leads Twelve Competitors.

MRS. HOLMES EIGHTH.

R. H. Pelling led by 5 points at the conclusion of the first day's shoot in the second monthly meeting of the Hong Kong Rifle Club which was commenced on the Kowloon Tong Range yesterday afternoon.

C. R. Anderson returned the best score for 500 Yards, but was unfortunately forced to withdraw from the competition when looking a likely winner. Mrs. L. B. Holmes, the only lady competitor, displayed good marksmanship over 600 Yards and returned a total of 43 to occupy eighth place out of twelve.

The following were yesterday's scores:

Name	500 Yds.	600 Yds.	Tl.
R. H. Pelling	28	31	59
H. Tower	30	24	54
V. C. M. Greenham	30	22	52
L. B. Holmes	27	23	50
R. H. Woodman	25	24	49
R. Packe	27	20	47
C. H. Owen	23	21	44
Mrs. L. B. Holmes	19	24	43
H. C. Watson	11	32	43
C. R. Anderson	32	—	32
T. P. Sanderson	20	2	22
A. J. Raptis	11	5	16

The competition will be continued this morning at 10 a.m. when targets will be used at 500 and 600 Yards.

It was sheer, square-jawed grit that gained for Reid, the Scottish champion, his coveted double of the sprint and the furlong at the White City last Saturday, and same glorious quality made the mile a thriller worthy of the Olympic Games themselves.—Thomas Mout.

SHANGHAI BOWLS CHAMPION ELIMINATED.

C. M. Sequeira Loses to N. W. Peach By 21 Shots to 16.

[From Our Own Correspondent.]

Shanghai, Wednesday. W. N. Peach caused one of the biggest sensations in the 1932 Lawn Bowls season when he eliminated C. M. Sequeira, last year's singles champion, by 21 shots to 16 in the Second Round of the Association Singles Championship on Friday.

After taking the lead at the fifth head Peach never looked back and actually scored a four on the last end, the twenty-second head.

WAH NAM BRANCH FOR COLONY.

Opening Ceremony When Players Arrive.

SUCCESS IN CANTON.

In view of the success attained by the Wah Nam Athletic Association in Canton, it has been decided to extend its activities to Hong Kong.

Mr. Ng Yim-yiu, a representative of the Association, recently arrived in the Colony to make the necessary arrangements and after discussing various aspects with Messrs. Chan Kwong, Ho Sai-yiu and Lam Tai-fong, Mr. Siu Hon-fu was appointed Manager and Mr. Wong Yam-kwan the Secretary.

The opening ceremony of the new branch is expected to take place when the Wah Nam football team arrive back from their tour of Malaya.

POLICE ATHLETE TO COME BACK

RELIABILITY TRIAL SUGGESTIONS.

Why Not On Victory Cup Lines.

NEW TERRITORIES AND FREAK RUN.

(By Exhaust Pipe)

The proposed motor cycle reliability trial to be run on October 10, should attract a record number of entries, especially if run on sporting lines as suggested at the recent meeting.

With the increasing number of reputable machines in the Colony competition should be strong. Last year a 350 c.c. Humber won the trophy.

H. G. Williams, who has been intimately connected with the organization of the local trials will be riding, and it will come as no surprise if he lifts the premier cup, especially in the absence of B. S. Rogers, who will not participate owing to his being elected Chairman of the Committee.

Other well-fancied starters will be H. Kew, G. W. Brand and E. Marriot, all of whom will probably ride British machines. Little difficulty should be experienced by the Committee in selecting a route that will call for riding skill, reliability and endurance, as the New Territories abound in freak hills which are the true motor cyclist's paradise.

Such a trial as the reliability event held on January 31, 1930, would be inadvisable when one considers the reliability of the present day machine and speedometers. Four circuits of the Territory road is merely a test of the rider's endurance and is no test at all for a machine that is worthy of the maker's name and the owner's care.

A Sporting Run. Even on that occasion more than 70 per cent. of the 50 entrants finished the "course," and many of those who failed to check in owed their failure to disaster while having a "blind" to relieve the monotony of the 20 m.p.h. schedule, and others to lighting trouble.

The event held in the Colony last year, on August 3, was more in the nature of a sporting trial, thanks to a typhoon blow which preceded the event, but even that did not come up to the standard of what a trial should be, though 13 starters out of 43 failed to finish.

At the recent meeting held in connection with the forthcoming competition, it was suggested by E. J. Spiers that an inspection of machines should be held at the end of the trial. This is strongly advisable if the trial is held over good roads, as was the case in 1930, but then the event would become more in the nature of a "stock trial" similar to the "Six Days" held at home, when competitors have to undergo a speed test at the end of a week's arduous riding.

When I suggest a sporting event, I do not go to such lengths as to suggest a local "Cambridge Scramble" but something on the lines of the "Victory Cup" or the "Colmore Cup." This could be attempted, leaving out the water splash, which it is said is very difficult to find locally.

Neither of the two latter mentioned events are machine smashing trials, but demand a high standard of riding and a well tuned machine, coupled with endurance.

It was further suggested at the meeting, that the trial should last 12 hours. Should this be decided upon, one complete circuit of the Territory road could easily be included with secret checks, and still leave ample time for the freak work.

BASKETBALL.

Canton Selected To Play Three Matches.

Nine girl student basketball players arrived in the Colony from Canton yesterday. They form a picked group representing the best players from that city. They are visiting the Colony for match experience and a vacation.

Games have been arranged with the South China A.A. to-morrow, Chung Nui on Tuesday and with Mei Fong on Wednesday.

The players are:—The Misses Hon Lam-pun, Wong Lai-lan, Yu Han-ying, Kwong Chin-man, Siu Mei-yuk, Hung Hing-oi, Chang Siu-yu, Kwong Yee-yu, and Lau Sau-lla.

HEMSLEY OUT FOR LOCAL TITLES.

Man Who Ran Fourth To Douglas Lowe.

ALSO IN RELAY TEAM WITH SAM FERRIS.

One Success In Colony.

("Herald" Exclusive.)

With the Olympic Games in progress at Los Angeles, it will be of interest to local sportsmen to learn that T. J. Hemsley, of the Hong Kong Police, was in 1928 teamed with Sam Ferris, of Great Britain, in the London to Brighton Five Miles Relay. Ferris this year came second in the Marathon, losing by 19 seconds to Zabala, the Argentine, who broke the Olympic record by returning a time of 2 hrs. 31 mins. 36 secs. Hemsley is to attempt a comeback on the track and will commence training in the Colony next month.

Hemsley ran fourth to D. G. A. Lowe, in the Half Mile at the London Championships in 1928. Lowe, who has only been eclipsed by Hampson, won the Half Mile title for Britain at the Olympic Games in 1924 and 1928.

Hemsley, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hemsley, of the Red Lion Hotel, Sparrows Green, received early training in athletics at Wadhurst and King Charles' School, Tunbridge Wells. Commencing at a young age, he gained swimming honours at the latter school. He won the City of London Championship for running, and was, in 1927, 1928 and 1929, in the "News of the World" London to Brighton Relay, running for Herne Hill.

In 1927, he gained first place in the Kent County cross-country championship.

London Championship. In November, 1927, he came second in the Herne Hill Harriers' five mile cross-country championship, and a few days later won the City of London Cross-Country Championship. In the latter event he returned the exceptionally good time of 26 mins. 22 seconds.

Hemsley's last public appearance in England before coming to Hong Kong was in August 1929, when he won the Draper and Drapery Times One Mile Trophy for the third year in succession in the one mile, covering the distance in the record time of 4 mins. 31 1/5ths secs. Running with fine judgment, Hemsley made his effort some 300 yards from home, winning by 25 yards from F. G. Woods (City Albion).

Within a month of his arrival in Hong Kong in late 1929 Hemsley ran in the Open Half Mile at the Hong Kong University Sports, but lack of training forced him into second place. Early in 1930 he proved an easy winner at the Open Mile at the Sacred Heart College Sports on the K. F. C. ground.

After a lapse of nearly two years, Hemsley hopes to return to athletics, and will commence training next month.

THREE SEMI-FINALISTS IN THE VALLEY FOURSOMES.

One Match Unplayed.

Three Third Round matches in the Happy Valley Foursomes were decided during the week with the following results:—

K. S. Robertson and Capt. H. W. Dawkes (25) beat T. R. Rowell and W. A. Stewart (34) one up.

C. B. Robertson and D. S. Ed-ward (23) beat Capt. H. V. B. Benfield and J. B. Mackie (26) by 3 and 1.

R. K. Valentine and A. E. Charman (20) beat G. W. Sewell and W. J. Waddington (31) two up.

The match between A. E. Clarke and R. C. Law (23) and Robb and A. G. Coplin (26) has not yet been played.

The draw for the Semi-Final Round is as follows:—

Robertson and Dawkes v. Valentine and Charman.

Clarke and Law v. Robb and Coplin.

CHINESE R.C. WIN LAST MATCH.

Remarkable Record For Season.

POLICE SUFFER TWELFTH DEFEAT.

Radio Victory.

The Lawn Tennis League enjoyed yet another slack week-end when only three matches were decided in yesterday's brilliant sunshine.

The Chinese Recreation Club concluded an all-triumphant season when they secured a clean-sweep victory over the Army Tennis Club at Causeway Bay. Their record is indeed a remarkable one—11 1/2 sets for and only 1 1/2 against.

Craigengower made light work of the weak Police team who were playing their last game of the season and the Radio Sports Club concluded the season with a second successive victory. They beat the Club during the week and yesterday accounted for the University.

Full scores follow:—

"C" Division.

UNIVERSITY V. RADIO S.C.

At Pokfulam the Radio Sports Club beat the University by 5 1/2 to 3 1/2.

Scores:—

CRICKET.

Barson And Madar Score Centuries.

TALL SCORING IN SHANGHAI.

[From Our Own Correspondent.]

Shanghai, Wednesday. Jack Barson, the Shanghai Interport cricketer, registered an undefeated century in Saturday's League game against the Police. His innings of 102 was largely responsible for the Wanderers' victory. He reached three figures in the last over of the match.

Pat Madar, a Shanghai Interport player who assisted Hong Kong last May, also reached three figures when he scored 103 not out against the Armoured Cars. In spite of good batting by Donald Leach (43) and R. Booth (33) the "Rees" won by six wickets.

C. G. W. Robson, who was Shanghai's opening batsman against Hong Kong last May, collected 78 for the Nomads against the Shafores, but in spite of his effort and that of P. V. Simpson (48) the Nomads lost by 3 wickets, L. Eccles knocking up 87 for the Shafores. The game produced 461 runs for the loss of 14 wickets.

Stanley Gash, the Shanghai soccer centre-half, scored 54 against the "Rees," but his fine innings proved unavailing.

I have seen the leaders of the game of tennis since the days of the Dohertys, including Maurice McLaughlin, Norman Brookes, Tony Wilding, Gerald Patterson, "Big Bill" Tilden and the three musketeers of France, but I have never witnessed such lawn tennis as was revealed by Vines in his matches with Crawford and Austin. —C. W. Packford.

AMERICA WINS SHANGHAI RIFLE SHOOT.

England Placed Third in International Meet.

[From Our Own Correspondent.]

Shanghai, Wednesday. America on Sunday won the Shanghai Rifle Association International match for the twelfth time in sixteen years. V. T. S. Gordon (U.S.A.) returned the highest individual score of the afternoon.

The following were the final positions:—

America	271
Philippines	262
England	241
Portugal	235
China	235
Japan	233
Switzerland	227
Russia	206

BEAUTY OF COLONY IN DANGER

SCENERY IS HIDDEN BY SIGN BOARDS

THE DISTORTED "ART" OF ADVERTISING.

LESSON OF THE PEAK

LONG years ago, before the chase of the nimble dollar and the luxury it commands became the be-all and end-all of existence, when there were jobs for all and the Gospel of Work had not yet become a fetish, when the Art of Advertising as we know it and suffer from it was yet unborn, when Life was easier and more spacious and, so we are told, "The world went very well then,"—to be exact, in the year 1789, a dear old gentleman called Archibald Allison was putting the finishing touches in the quiet of his study in Edinburgh to his book on "The Nature and Principles of Taste."

Britain had a war on then, quite a great war too, though Napoleon had not yet swept Europe like a flame, but Allison possessed the virtue of detachment that our present-day literary men seem to have lost and, oblivious to wars and rumours of wars, was able serenely to dig fine thoughts out of his own educated and sufficient mentality. His book runs to eight chapters, seven sub-sections, and 415 pages, and on no page is there any mention of Taste in Advertising. Is it too much to hope that some of our local literary lights, say a member of the Kowloon Residents Association, might supply the deficiency.

We cannot blame Allison for the omission, for in his day there were no patent medicines and only one soap and, as we know patent medicines and soaps are the back-bone of modern advertising. And we bring in Kowloon of fell intention, for if Kowloon is not up and doing it seems like breaking out into a rash of the same eye-gores as disfigure the County of Kent, whose green fields produce as crops chiefly Carter's Little Liver Pills, Pears Soap, Glaxo for Babies, Babbies, and beauty specifics for the brand of babies drooled about in jazz songs. For indeed the whole green land of the South of England has been betrayed, till to-day as seen from the windows of the train, or from a motor car on the main roads, you are travelling down avenues of boardings of such garish hues as obliterate any sense of nature's beauty, for it seems that every new nostrum must be proclaimed in cruder form and more vulgar colouring than its competitors already in the advertiser's gallery. But the thing has been carried to such senseless lengths as were bound to bring about a reaction, and from the latest news we learn that the reaction has arrived.

Where It Started.

It started with the Petrol Filling Stations that bob up every few miles along the main roads. Hitherto, a bright crimson pump, any kind of a shed plastered with advertisements of lubricating oils and accessories has sufficed. Now the stations have to be in accord with the aesthetic sense of the local authorities and—we shall see what we shall see.

Strange enough, Sky-Writing, one of the latest developments of publicity, has been among the first to fall foul of the good sense of the British public, and seems likely to be banned in entirety by the Authorities.

Nothing seems yet to have been done about hearings. Perhaps the fact that in general they are erected on private property, and but too often are the only source of income the land possessors may account for the lapse. Surely the Power that can control the heavens should not fall us in the matter of green fields. And is there not something of warning in this for us and the Hong Kong Government. The beauty of Hong Kong Nights is of world-wide knowledge, some say beyond compare, and the thought of having our November Orion's Belt plastered with Dogbody's Corn

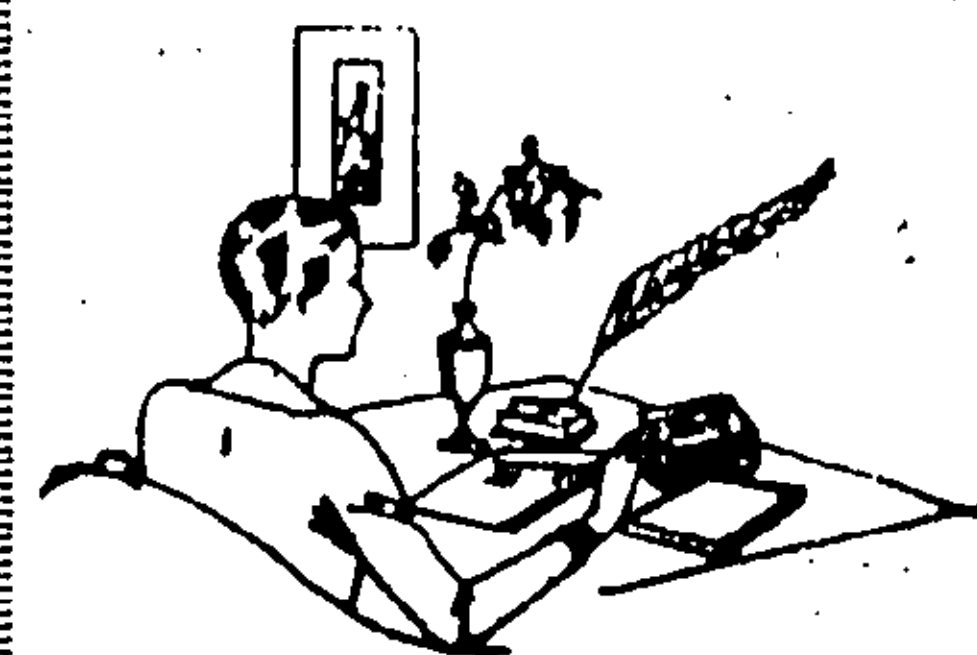

Cure, and a bottle of MacSporran's Whiskey flickering on the Moon-lit top of Tai-mo-shan gives us a preliminary pain.

Success on the Peak.
Some months ago a public outcry succeeded in having a quite unnecessary advertisement removed from the hillside near the Peak Tramway, and we have just learned that the Government contemplates taking the steps necessary to control advertising in this Colony. We do not claim to be an artistically-minded community, but there seems ground for hoping that we may escape the deluge of vulgarity that swamped the scenic beauties of Europe and America.

And if an exemplar and a warning of what to expect is required to encourage the Government to get on with the good work there is one to hand. The Lyceum is the main water-gate to the harbour. It is probably known to as many ocean travellers as any Strait, Pass, or Entrance to any harbour in the world. Whether you come to it at dawn, with the rising sun behind you making of the mountain ahead a city of marble terraces, or glide through as through a dream gateway on a fine night of stars, or even feel your way through it in a fog with just the dim outline of highland on either hand and sometimes the glimpse of a big gun against the skyline,—whatever be the time when you pass the Lyceum then, as the harbour entrance to a great port, it is beyond doubt notable, never without significance, always sufficient. And the Lyceum has been desecrated, outraged, by advertisement. Thirty feet by twelve of blatant vulgarity it is there on the centre of the North Cliff for all voyagers to marvel at. And of no perishable material is this atrocity compounded, but of a well two-and-a-half feet thick of cement concrete. Politically, even as aesthetically, it is an outrage, as a glance at the picture in this issue will show. A little while ago some artistically-minded patriots somewhat softened the lurid colours of the poster with a coat of tar, but the advertiser has had the picture cleaned and re-decorated in more than its pristine garishness. So it is now again up to the patriots, and we await the issue with a great interest and some confidence. Unless the Government gets in ahead of them and bars all such atrocities in this Colony for ever and a day.

So we are left wondering what Professor Allison, if he had lived a 100 years later, would have had to say in the chapter he did not write on "The Principles of Applying Beauty of Form and Colour to the Art of Advertising."

The GLOBE TROTTER'S DIARY.

Armed Banks—On Wheels

Cash for cheques at the door of your house is now the innovation brought in for the countryside, says the B.U.P. from Ionia, Michigan.

"Travelling bankers" to minister to the needs of those communities that have been deprived of banking facilities by the closing of banks will be inaugurated tomorrow by the Ionia National Bank.

On Tuesdays and Fridays the "bank," which actually is an armoured car equipped with machine guns will spend an hour in each of the smaller towns—Belding, Orleans, Muir, Lyons and Clarksville—and all the usual banking business from receiving deposits to cashing cheques and making loans will be conducted.

Where possible the building with equipment of the closed local bank will be used.

Reduced And Divorced

Mrs. Joannette Davidson weighed 17st. 12lbs., and she did not want to reduce. Her husband, however, insisted and paid $100 for gymnasium classes and "slimming" exercises, says a Renter's Chicago message.

Eventually she lost 10st. 10lbs., but it cost $1 a pound; and she grew weary of the trial.

In pleading for a divorce, she said, "Every time I missed a gymnasium class he sent me."

The judge granted her a divorce on the charge of cruelty.

Her Snake Necklace

Sub-Bathers on the beach at Juan-les-Pins, had a shock when a beautiful woman appeared in their midst wearing only a bathing costume, and round her neck—a huge boa constrictor.

Their apprehensions were quickly dispelled, however, when it became known that the woman was a well-known Paris music-hall artiste whose speciality is a wild animal act.

The boa constrictor, which is perfectly gentle and tame, is her constant companion and hardly ever leaves her side.

Police Police

From Berlin comes the news that a special course of politeness is being given to the Baden police to teach the how to deal with foreigners in an especially courteous and helpful manner.

Particular attention is also to be paid by them to combat noise in Baden's health resorts.

Their Try-Ing Time

Between Goolboe and Silkwood, about 70 miles south of Cairns, Queensland, the basket containing the English Rugby League tourists kit was found to be on fire.

The Basket was thrown off the train, but the contents, including the team's knickers and jerseys were reduced to ashes.

The fire is believed to have been caused by a spark from the engine alighting on the basket which had been placed on the platform of one of the two special sleeping saloons reserved for the team on their journey from Brisbane.

Atkinson Smith's pet jersey was amongst property lost.

Shock for Bathers

A sensation was caused on the crowded beach at Heberes, near Toulon when a young man was seen to wade into the sea in his bathing costume and shoot himself in the head.

The man, who died almost instantly, was identified as Pierre Henry, an officer in the French Marines.

The suicide took place before hundreds of people, and several women fainted.

Wonder Ram

A farmer at Broussa, Turkey, is the owner of a ram which has seven horns—four on the right side of the head and three on the left.

Several offers have been made for the curious animal, but the owner is unwilling to sell the ram which has been placed on exhibition and has aroused much interest.

GRETA GARBO ENJOYS HOLIDAY

FAMOUS FILM STAR FEELS HOMESICK

"THE LONeliEST GIRL IN HOLLYWOOD."

RUNNING AWAY FROM FAME AND FORTUNE

If you had been doing the same work, with the same people, in the same place, thousands of miles away from your homeland, for nearly ten years, wouldn't you feel homesick?

With half a million unknown film "fans" for my friends, I have been "the loneliest girl in Hollywood."

As I Please.

And now I am determined to do as I please. I have often thought I should like to make a film again in Sweden, at the Rasunda Studio, which is my screen birthplace.

It was at Rasunda that I made "The Atonement of Gosta Berling," my first film. Lars Hansen and Jenny Hasselquist—two artists of world fame—also acted in pictures there.

At Rasunda, too, great Swedish directors like Victor Sjöström and the late Mauritz Stiller had a free hand, and produced a series of distinctly national film epics, notably "The Soul Shall Bear Witness," "Love's Crucible," "The Phantom Carriage," "The Exiles," and "Arne's Treasure."

I Want The Sea.

How lovely to be working once more in my own country, with my own people, amid congenial surroundings, within ten minutes of the heart of Stockholm and only a stone's throw from the sea that is the breath of life to me!

How I have missed during these last years in Hollywood the soft caress of its summer breezes, the rough buffeting of its winter storms.

Beneath these ever-blazing suns, I missed, too, the gentle recurring reminder of approaching spring, when the earth awakes from its long sleep... the majestic pomp and pageantry of the passing seasons... the kaleidoscopic colour and enchantment of the changeless, changing year.

Above all, I missed the rhythm and the cadence of my own tongue, the voices of my friends, the familiar faces, the familiar places, the sights and the sounds of home!

Yes, I have been the loneliest girl in Hollywood.

And in my loneliness I have had as my constant companion the fear of popularity and all that it entails.

I do not much like strange people poking and prying into my affairs. The stares of strangers and even those of casual acquaintances annoy me.

My greatest delight is to romp with children, yet, because of the presence of strangers, I do not often indulge it. I retire instead into my shell.

They Were Shocked.

I do not want curious eyes watching what I do, nor strange ears hearing what I say.

So a veil has descended between me and my "fans." My private life is a closed book to them. My real self remains shrouded in mystery.

The truth of the matter is that during the whole of my stay in Hollywood I have lived simply. A cook, a house-maid, a chauffeur, and a gardener have constituted my retinue of servants. And these only in the last few years.

When I arrived in 1925 and was asked where I wanted to live, I shocked everyone by replying: "I'd like to have a room in a nice private family."

My growing need for seclusion, however, changed that desire to one for a home by myself. Swimming, hiking in the hills, and sun-bathing have been my principal recreations.

A Lonely Gallop.

And when the seasonal rains set in—for all too short a period—I love to go for a wild, lonely gallop with the refreshing rain beating in my face.

One of my hobbies has been to seek out quaint little eating places and obscure little theatres where I was sure I would not be recognised. I have lived in many homes since I came to Hollywood. When my presence in neighbourhood became too well known, and persons began pointing out "where Greta Garbo lives," I promptly set out to find a new residence.

I wanted to be left alone.

Perpetual Dread.

For that reason I never attended the premiere of one of my own pictures, nor for that matter one of any other star's.

I have seldom been out at night anywhere, and when I did go it was invariably behind dark glasses and with a hat pulled low over my face.

I was not troubled by this ridiculous fear of crowds and public worship before I became a star, because then I lived as others do, surrounded by a few friends and leading a normal life of my own.

Nowadays I can never visit my friends without the perpetual dread that there may be other people there.

What I like to do is to drop in informally, and sit hunched up on the floor beside the fire—for one does have cool nights in California, even in the summer—and discuss the problems of my profession, the new pictures from abroad that we see all too rarely in the little Filmarte Theatre in Vine-street, and the "modern" movement in the world of art and letters.

Then I Leave.

If I hear the bell ring I become restless, and with the arrival of visitors I leave hurriedly.

The curiosity of the public reaches out and hurls me as if it were a live tangible thing. New personalities, accepted casually by the average person, are painful things which take too much out of me.

An artist needs her spiritual strength for her work. Do not imagine, though, that I live on a separate plane from the rest of the world. That is just a myth, invented and circulated by the publicity staff of the studio.

The Rebellion.

Another stupid legend that has grown up about me is that I don't care what I wear, that I am indifferent to clothes.

As a matter of fact, I am as enthusiastic about my frocks as any debutante, and take immense pains about their fit, colour, line, texture, and so forth, as Adrian, my dress designer, is well aware.

Adrian and I have fine times selecting and arranging my things. He designs most of my personal things and I devote much time and thought to them.

I am as pleased as a child when they turn out as I expect them to. I have never achieved the distinction of popularising a mode, however, though I have sometimes created one.

Something about my personality leaves other women in doubt as to whether or not they could carry off the particular hat or coat or frock originated for me.

But, the same hat, modified later and made for some other star, will immediately become the vogue, because women the world over feel that they, too, can look charming in such a hat.

However, "Goodbye to all that!" I am running away from fame and fortune. At last I have rebelled against my golden martyrdom. Now I am determined to do as I please!

WISE & OTHERWISE

When asked by his Sunday School teacher if he didn't want to go to Heaven, a little fellow replied: "No, thank you. It's not long since I came from there."

Stains are best removed from white trousers with turpentine, a stiff brush—and a pair of scissors.

Sympathetic Neighbour—"How is the boss?"
Wife of Invalid—"I'm all right, thanks."

"How do you like your new father?" "Oh, he's very nice!"
Yes, he is. We had him last year!

Commercial traveller: "May I show you something really smart in silk stockings?" Draper (eagerly): "What's she like?"

Man at the Wheel (seeing inebriated gentleman): "That reminds me. I must get the car well oiled to-morrow."

Peevish Child, as motor crashes through the garden wall and a man is thrown out: "He must go and play in his own garden, mustn't he mamma?"

Doctor: "What is your profession?" Patient (pompously): "I'm a gentleman." Doctor: "Well you'll have to try something else; it doesn't agree with you."

Mrs. Smith: "I'm going down town this morning." Smith: "Shopping, my dear?" Mrs. Smith: "No, I haven't time for that. Just to buy a few things that I need!"

THE MAID—I should like to leave on the first of next month and ask if the cleaning cannot be postponed till after that date.

Father—"You will get £8,000 with my daughter's hand." Prospective Son-in-Law: "H'm—she has two hands, I believe!"

"I shall never," exclaimed the artist in dramatic tones as he displayed his last painting, "do anything finer than that." "Cheer up," said his friend; "don't lose heart, old man."

"I hear that before her marriage the film star told her bridegroom all her past." "What a nerve she must have." "Yes, and what a memory."

"The first day out was perfectly lovely," writes Tilly. "The water was as smooth as glass, and it was simply gorgeous. But the second day was rough and—er—decidedly disgorgeous."

"If I grow up and get married, shall I have a husband like papa?" asked little Marjorie. "Very likely, dear," said her mother. "And if I do not get married, shall I be an old maid like auntie?" "Yes, dear." After a long pause, spent in deep thought, Marjorie remarked: "Well, I am in a fix."

A certain Government workman having been supplied with an income-tax form to be filled up, returned it with the following note: "Sir, I am returning this form, as I don't want to join the Income Tax. I subscribe to the Hearts of Oak."

After much searching, the caddie found a ball in the rough, and handed it to his employer. "The man disowned it. 'This is an old ball, and mine was a new one,' he said. 'Yes, sir,' said the caddie, 'but don't forget it's a long time since we started out.'"

Wang Ching-wei's Resignation.

THE political unrest consequent upon the resignation of Mr. Wang Ching-wei and the Cabinet is most inappropriate at a time when some form of unity in China is almost imperative if her claims are to be recognised. But in view of the paucity of information concerning the reasons for the sudden bombshell it would be unwise to judge the participants until all the facts are known. There has been considerable indecision on the part of the Government since the Japanese trouble broke out and it may well be the present crisis may result in some definite policy being determined. There are many interpretations that can be placed on Wang's resignation, the most probable being that which attributes it to a dispute between the military and civil factions. The former President of the Executive Yuan explains his action by expressing dissatisfaction with General Chang Hsueh-liang's policy of non-resistance in Manchuria, and further alleges diversion of funds intended for the defence of North China. The latter charge has not been yet substantiated and Chang has offered to make public all the facts in order that impartial judgment can be secured. On the question of non-resistance, the opinions are many and diverse. The whole thing was unsatisfactory but the blame cannot all be laid on any one leader. Rather it was the lack of concerted action, the various internal squabbles and the hesitation and delay which prevented any early, determined opposition being presented to Japan. Nanking did not emerge from the events of the past nine months with any great credit, and the failure to give General Tsai Ting-kai and his 19th Route Army adequate support was a reflection on the Government. Since then the militarists have devoted close attention to suppression of Communists and the Manchurian situation may be said to have been left "in the air." Public opinion in China is growing that a real resistance should be staged against Japan and it is thought by many that the Cabinet impasse is a reaction to that opinion. Whatever the merits of his case, Chang has shown ingenuity in handling in his resignation, and with it, his responsibility. Having shifted the interest to General Chiang Kai-shek, he has cleared the way for departure abroad. Whether he will actually leave China for a few years is still a matter for conjecture but the latest indications point to that conclusion. In that event Wang will probably be prevailed upon to withdraw his resignation and after a rearrangement it would not be too much to hope for a decisive and definite policy from Nanking. It is extremely desirable that Wang should resume office. His ability, his influence and his patriotism make him a popular leader and he may accomplish much in the future towards effecting a closer unity in China. Those who resort to the old contemptuous attitude of assertion that China will never be united are ignorant of the steady improvement in domestic relationships. The educated classes and the influential leaders are aware of the advantages of a united nation and are moving towards the ideal of a new spirit of co-operation. The present situation is regrettable but if an improved administration is secured the result will have justified the method.

The fear that international affairs would suffer from the American elections appears substantiated by the campaign announcement of President Hoover, who is seeking re-election as the Republican candidate. The convictions of the leaders will be relegated as the candidates attempt to make a popular appeal to the United States public, whose views on matters such as war debts and Geneva are rather clouded by the bitterness caused by the acute economic blizzard which is now striking America with full force. Mr. Hoover's attitude of non-compromise on war debts—except as a weapon for bargaining on trade and armaments—is clearly indicative of his intention to catch votes rather than follow his own convictions. The result is likely to be unfortunate to the forthcoming international discussions on which so much depends.

The gravity of the political situation in Germany has eased since the temporary check to the Nazis, but there is still apprehension of the final composition of the Government. If Herr Hitler secures any degree of power, a stiffening of the foreign policy can be expected and the reaction, particularly in France, may provide yet another unsettling effect on world affairs.

PEOPLE WANT CHANGE.

Unemployed Who Will Not Work.

"Many men who are unemployed in the United States do not want work, they are content to live on the meals they can from other people," stated Mr. Joseph Lilly, the prominent American adventurer and big game hunter, who is at present in the Colony.

During an interview with the Sunday Herald yesterday, he expressed an opinion that "Roosevelt was almost the certain to be the next President of the United States."

Mr. Lilly is at present on his way to French Indo-China where he plans to add a few more heads to his already famous collection of wild beasts.

"Conditions in America are not so bad now as they were," he said, "but they are still very depressing. On the West coast, where they were enjoying a comparative boom when the rest of the country was in the throes of the depression, they are feeling the pinch at its worst, but in the Middle-west things are improving."

"Thousands are still without employment, and these numbers are supplemented by many who do not want to work. They are taking advantage of the excuse 'I cannot find work' to get free meals from the public."

"Why, take for instance this case," Mr. Lilly continued, "I recently went down to the Court House in Des Moines, where a number of so-called unemployed were hanging around and tried to recruit a few of them to do a wall-washing job."

"How much are you paying," asked one. I replied, "Forty cents an hour." "Nothing doing," was the general reply.

"On another occasion I had a man in to beat some carpets for me. He said that he had tried to get another man to help him in the job, and had offered to pay him 60 cents an hour for four hours."

"If I cannot get a job for longer than four hours, I won't work at all," was the reply.

Speaking about the forthcoming election in the United States, Mr. Lilly said that in his opinion the country were ready for a change.

"Get the in's out" seems to be the motto now, and I estimate that there will be 175 new faces in the House of Representatives in Washington this year."

"There is a definite leaning to the Democrats. I myself, have always voted Republican, but this year I am going Democrat. After all, Hoover has done very little during his term of office."

"It is my opinion that Roosevelt is certain to be elected as the next President of the United States."

Turning the conversation into big game hunting, Mr. Lilly said that it was his hobby, and he did not hunt for profit.

"I just want a few more heads to take back with me," he said, when asked the object of his trip to Indo-China.

I have never been out this way before, but from what I hear, it is an ideal hunting ground. My previous trips have been to Africa."

In all his adventures as a hunter, Mr. Lilly has had no really narrow escapes from death or serious injury.

ROUND THE WORLD.

Berlin, July 31.

It was announced here today that the German airman, Capt. von Grounau, who has departed from Ottawa on a flight to Chicago, intends to continue his flight around the world by way of British Columbia, North Pacific, the Aleutian Islands, Kamchatka and Japan. From there he is expected to travel down the Chinese coast to India and the Persian Gulf and back to Germany.

Colony's Wealth In Hands Of Few

Situation A Potential Menace To Peace

WHEN MASSES AWAKEN

(By E. L. ALLEN.)

When anyone sets foot in Hong Kong for the first time, I do not see how he can escape one obvious and immediate impression—that of the inequality which is all about him. I do not speak of political disadvantages or racial discrimination, but of something which cuts into the quick of ordinary life for thousands of people. I mean inequality in the distribution of wealth.

I do not say that one gets this impression nowhere else, I only say that one certainly gets it here. One travels from Singapore in the enjoyment of every convenience which an enterprising shipping company can provide, while down below hundreds of deck passengers, men, women, and children, are huddled together, some of them sleeping amid the stink and coal-dust, others looking helplessly on while high seas break over the ship's side and flood the little space which is all they have on which to rest. That is inequality. One lands in Hong Kong and takes a car to one's destination; before long, the car has to swerve aside to leave room for a dozen men—or women, it may be—straining like beasts of burden at a loaded truck. That is inequality. Night falls, and one contracts the line of lights along the Peak and the brilliantly illuminated residences there with the squalid tenements packed with human beings, in rooms for which an extortionate rent is charged and which invite a horrible death in the event of fire. That is inequality.

There is a theory, I know, and a widely-held one, according to which such inequality is necessary, is indeed the price which must be paid for social and economic progress. Without the existence of a class elevated in wealth far above their fellows, so it is said, there would be no capital for industrial development, and there would be no cultivation of the arts and sciences and the finer side of life in general. There is another theory, and my own vote is given unhesitatingly for that, according to which the one foundation of a stable social order is an equitable—I do not say an equal—distribution of wealth, and that it is just the failure to provide this which plunges civilisation into periodic crises, world-unemployment, and even in the end world-war.

Proof of Theory.

That this is so, seems to me proved up to the hilt by what is happening at the present moment in every country which has accepted a system under which all are told to struggle for wealth but only a few are allowed to obtain it. It is true that we in Hong Kong have not felt the full force of this chill and benumbing current in human affairs. That is because we, and other parts of the world in which similar conditions prevail, are the exception which proves the rule. We are a trading, not a manufacturing centre, we are in immediate touch with a huge reservoir of cheap labour, and that cheap labour is still without the education which would make it demand a higher standard of living. Above all, men with us are still cheaper than machines. It is only when capitalism has entered on its second phase and, as someone has put it, unemployment becomes the most flourishing of a country's industries, that the problem grows serious enough and the discontent it creates vocal enough to compel it to put its house in some sort of order.

But can we hope always to be an exception. I do not think so, though I would not care to venture a prophecy as to how long the present conditions may be able to endure. Sooner or later, surely, we shall be caught into the world-maelstrom, but how soon or how late who can tell? Indeed, recovery in the great industrial countries and rising demand in China might enable us to go on for a long time as we are. On the other hand, education cannot always be kept back from the masses, and that may prove the decisive consideration in the end.

Question of Justice.
But the question which interests me is not, "How long will all this last?" but the simpler question, "Is it right?" Efficiency and wealth are not the standards by which a society is to be judged, such a standard is rather to be found in simple justice. It was when Israel was extraordinarily prosperous, with trade flourishing, the throne secure, political prestige at its highest, the arts under wealthy patronage, and religion attracting the mass of the people, that Amos came forward to denounce his time. For him, the sin of it all consisted in a state of things in which there existed a wealthy, cultured, leisured class over against the needy, nameless multitude—and men named over this the name of God!

The talpan and the rickshaw coolie, in terms of economic realities, are inhabitants of two different worlds. Is this right? Is there more behind it than

"The good old rule, the simple plan."

That they should take who have the power,

And they should keep who can?" Or, to come nearer home, there is a great gulf fixed between people like ourselves with decent homes and reasonable incomes and the woman breaking stones by the roadside with her last baby strapped pitifully to her back. Is this right? How long shall we allow it to last?

FOREIGNERS IN FRANCE.

New Regulation In Force.

British subjects—and other foreigners who wish to reside in France for more than two months are now required:—

To swear before a commissioner for oaths that they have never been in prison and have never committed any crime for which they might in future be imprisoned.

This is the effect of a new regulation compelling foreigners to show the authorities a certificate of good conduct from their country of origin before they will be granted the identity card necessary for a stay exceeding two months.

A representative of The Daily Telegraph was informed at the French Consulate in London that the regulations had been in force for several weeks. No official notification has yet been received by the Consul-General, but forms are being issued in anticipation. These forms are similar to those which French citizens are required to complete before travelling to any of the French colonies. After being filled up and checked these forms receive the official seal of the Consulate.

HARBIN FLOOD DISASTER.

The streets of Pristan, another section of Harbin, are all flooded and it is necessary to use boats for conveyances. The river is rising slowly.

Relief organisations are unable to cope with the steadily increasing demands for medical aid, food and shelter and the suffering of the poor people is intense.

The situation in New Town has grown worse. Property damage is running into immense figures.

Trains, however, are maintaining a precarious schedule between the city and Tsetihar, Ashilo and Shwangchengpu.

The flooding of the Amur River basin, which prevents the normal flow of the Sungari River, has caused the present disastrous situation. There is no great possibility of immediate relief for the floods show no sign of abating. — Reuter.

Knee-deep in water.

Hunting, one of the most absorbing of sports, demands our fullest powers of attention. We are indifferent to sunshine or rain, dust or water. But when it is over, we begin to feel the effects which show themselves in general malaise, headache, shooting pains in the limbs, etc. When these come on, the proper remedy is

Bayer's ASPIRIN

There is nothing which will relieve the sportsman like it, since it removes in the shortest possible time not only all kinds of pain, headache, migraine, neuralgia, etc., but it makes a new man of him and regulates the circulation without damaging either the heart or kidneys.

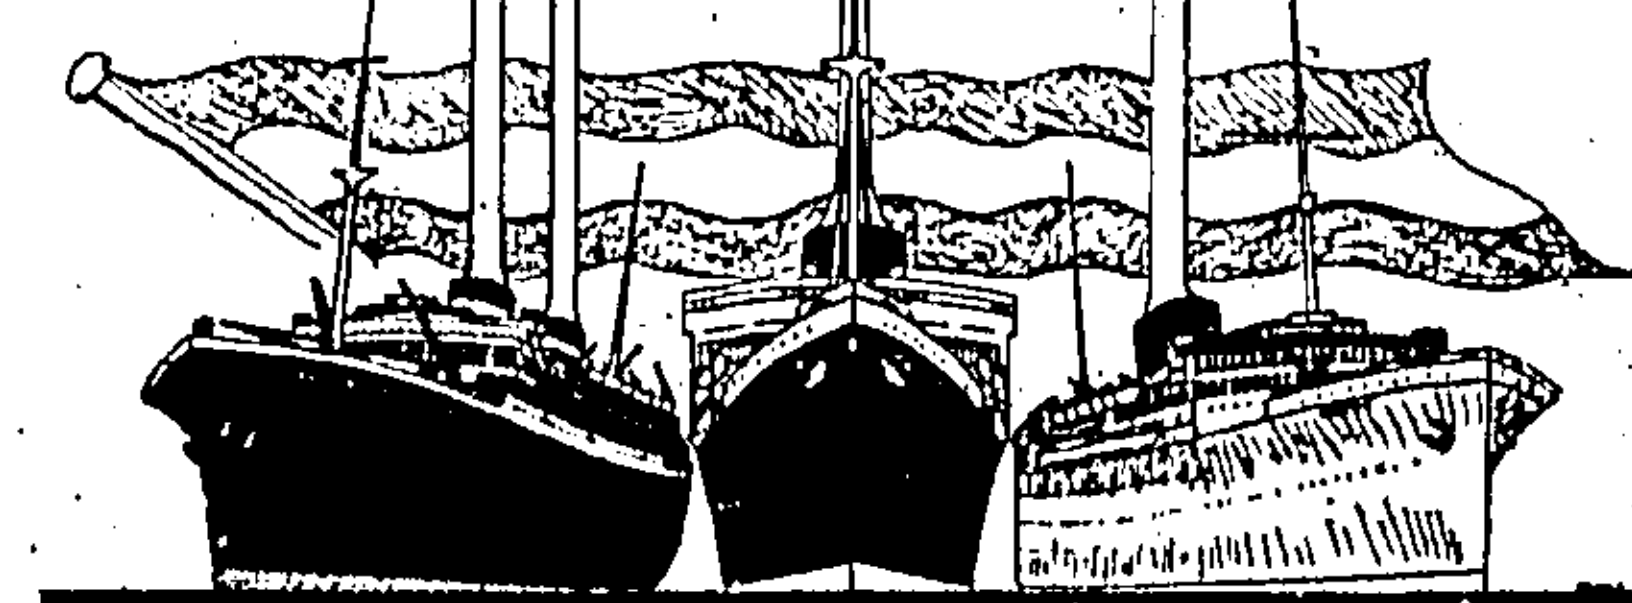

Substitutes and imitations are often dangerous. Beware of them! Always demand Bayer's ASPIRIN in its original packing protected by the BAYER CROSS.

BETTER MILK FOR BABIES

"The most perfect child they have ever seen"

thanks to

LACTOGEN

"I am sending you a photograph of my child Irene taken when she was 6 months and 2 weeks old. This child has been fed exclusively on "Lactogen" from the day of her birth and is declared by everyone locally to be the most perfect child they have seen. She had two teeth by the time she was six months old, sat up at 4 months; she is a most perfectly contented child and no trouble at all."

—R.S.R.

Gains on Lactogen indicate healthy all-round development. Flesh is firm, bones grow densely, nerves are strong and sturdy constitution is established—progress is steady.

For Lactogen supplies all the elements of vital nutriment in the right proportions and in such easily digested form that even the most delicate babies thrive on Lactogen from birth.

Lactogen is pure, fresh, full-cream, modified dried milk with extra cream and natural milk sugar added, made in all important respects exactly like breast milk. "Put Baby on Lactogen" Doctors and Nurses are telling Mothers everywhere, "Lactogen is indeed the better milk for Babies," they say.

About 60 per cent. of the copper produced in and imported by Germany is used in the manufacture of electric cables and insulated wire, which industry also ranks second in consumption of lead and rubber.

The United States production in the first three months this year of 77,683,520 pairs of boots and shoes other than rubber represented an increase of 6.1 per cent. over that in the corresponding period last year.

SZECHUEN GENERAL'S AGENT ARRESTED.

Mr. Ma, who is a native of the Tol Shan district, is a graduate of Kingston University, England, and after his graduation he went to America to study gunnery at West Point Academy. He returned to China in 1924.

He is now the head of the Arsenal, which is under the control of General Tin Chung-yu. The maintenance of the Arsenal is stated to be $700,000 per month, and 6,000 people are employed there. The plant is capable of supplying the whole Szechuen army with artillery and ammunition.

The largest province in China, Szechuen covers an area of 1,300,000 square li, and has a population of 58,000,000. It produces gold, silver, iron, lead, sulphur, and coal, the first named commodity being plentiful and cheap.

Rich Revenue.

In addition there are 800 salt wells in the province, the revenue from which amounts to $80,000,000 per year. Opium revenue totals $60,000,000 a year, and other revenues amount to $60,000,000.

Four feudal lords control the province, Generals Lau Sheung, Lau Man-fai, Tin Chung-yu, and a lesser ruler. They have a non-aggressive policy and each keeps to his own territory.

Gen. Lau Sheung occupies the Southern part of the province, Gen. Tin Chung-yu the Northeast, and the other two the Northwest.

No trucks weighing more than 1½ tons are admitted into Lau Sheung's section of the province, on the grounds that they might be used as armoured cars, and no steel bars of more than 15 feet in length, that might be used for weapons of war. Any imports which might lead to an increase of power on the part of his three neighbours, are also kept out by Gen. Lau Sheung.

To Break Blockade.

The purchase of the 16 aeroplanes by General Tin Chung-yu has been causing Gen. Lau Sheung much uneasiness, as General Tin has long wished to establish an air route and so break Gen. Lau Sheung's blockade.

Concluding, Mr. Ma said that he would not return to Szechuen until one of the passenger planes which he has ordered on behalf of General Tin, is ready, and he will then make his return journey by air. By air, he can make the trips in six or seven hours, instead of the 14 days required by sea and land.

The machine he is awaiting is an eight-seater with a cruising speed

Eighteen cases are reported from Macao, and 11 from Canton.

$2,000,000 Contract For Britain.

A British firm has provisionally secured the contract to build a $2,000,000 bridge, the longest in Europe, over the Storstrom Strait, in Denmark.

Messrs. Dorman, Long and Co., of Middlesbrough, are to undertake the project, and Mr. Charles Mitchell, their chairman, has entered into the provisional contract with the Danish Ministry for Public Works at a meeting in Copenhagen. The work is expected to start some time during the coming autumn.

British steel, totalling many thousands of tons, will be provided for great armies or men engaged in the steel and transport industries.

The bridge will connect the islands of Mannedo and Faletor on the Danish Continental route, and will be nearly two miles long. The work is expected to last until 1939 or 1940.

of about 160 m.p.h., and a maximum speed of 180 m.p.h.

The contract for the 16 machines has been placed with Messrs. Lam Wing-yan, and is valued at $3500,000. Apart from the passenger machine, the rest of the fleet will consist of amphibian bombers and pursuit planes, the latter being capable of 210 m.p.h.

On his return, Mr. Ma will take up duties as the Military trainer.

TERRIFIC STORMS IN ENGLAND.

From the countryside reports of similar storms have been made and much serious damage to the crops is reported. Farmers gathering their hay have sustained great losses, and in some instances cart-loads of hay were set on fire by lightning. Tremendous damage occurred in the Lea Valley, where the huge pelting hailstones smashed thousands of panes of glass in the greenhouses and completely ruined acres of garden produce.

Remarkable scenes have been witnessed in the city of London and other big centres during the past few days in the sweltering spell of tropical weather, during which the temperature reached 88 degrees in the shade and 135 degrees in the sun. It is the highest temperature since August 29, 1930, when a temperature of 93 degrees in the shade was registered in London.

Swimming baths were kept open in the city last night until midnight and thousands of heat-weary Londoners flocked to them in a vain attempt to keep cool.

Swarms of children thronged the Serpentine throughout Thursday and Friday, while many took advantage of the city fountains in spite of the watchful eyes of the Metropolitan police.

Those more lucky, flocked to the sea-side resorts which are undergoing the same heat wave experience, and considerable difficulty was experienced in finding accommodation at the more popular resorts on the South Coast.

Paraphrasing city workers, hawkers and coolies, some wearing topers and Palm Beach suits, watched the opportunity of swimming during the midday hour, while long queues lined up outside all the swimming baths and pools after office hours.

Most of the inland districts of England and the East Coast are suffering from similar conditions, and are coping with it in the same manner.—Reuter.

A record shipment of 72,000 tomatoes from Bermuda arrived in Canada on the Canadian National liner Lady Somers, succeeding the liner from the Bahamas and preceding the Canadian-grown product. The shipment also included 375,000 Bermuda onions, 400 crates of celery, 2,000 crates of other vegetables and well over 1,000,000 bananas.

EFFECT OF MENTAL HAZARDS

(By A LOCAL PADRE.)

(This is another of the series of articles written exclusively for the "Sunday Herald" by a local chaplain.)

If the Disarmament Conference fails, it will be the end of our Civilization.

Such is the remark one hears on all sides to-day, and yet it is an extraordinary fact that again and again civilization has only just been saved by the skin of its teeth. When all seemed lost, some strange power has always stepped in, and saved the situation.

Sometimes it has been the forces of Nature, untamed by the strength of man, unharnessed to human control, which has turned the day. At others some single individual has pitted his puny strength against seemingly impossible odds, and won through.

Sometimes it has been that spirit of unquenchable courage in the hearts of men, which scorns defeat, and flames up brightest in life's darkest hour. That sublime inspiration, which knows no country and no age, no barrier of race, nor class, nor clime.

At others, it has been one link of a chain which should have proved unbreakable, and yet which snapped at the critical moment, through some error of judgment, through some unexpected, and unprepared—for emergency.

What would have happened had not the vast fleet of the barbarian Xerxes been smashed by the tiny forces of the Greeks, and by the intervention of the elements? If history had not repeated itself in an almost identical manner 2,000 years later, when the gallant ships of Drake smashed the Armada of Spain, and the winds of heaven left the wrecks of a proud fleet scattered along the shores of a still unconquered people?

What would have become of Europe had not the invading Hannibal and luxurious Carthage been driven out of Italy when all hope had been abandoned, and stark ruin stared Rome in the face?

If Octavius Caesar had not, against the expectation of the whole world, defeated Antony, and his Oriental mistress Cleopatra? If the hordes of Arabs had overrun Europe in the early days after Christ—as they were within an ace of doing? If Napoleon had beaten Europe staggering to her knees, as it seemed inevitable that he must?

If Von Kluck had pressed on towards the Channel Ports when they lay at his mercy, or Ludendorff had broken clean through, as he very nearly did in March 18?

No one can tell, but we can make a pretty good guess.

Sufficient it is to know, that near as disaster seemed, the inch was as good as a mile.

Even if all attempts to find a settlement fail, civilization need not despair. There have been closer calls than this, and yet we have managed to pull through.

Behind civilization, as we have tried to show in previous articles, there has always been something outside and beyond itself, something stronger than the power of man, guiding its destiny, and shaping its end.

If this is true in profane history, it is even more conspicuous in the history of the Christian Church.

The "IFS" of religion make one of the most fascinating studies in the world. Here are just a few.

What would have happened if the Egyptian Pharaoh had decided to run all "aks, and NOT allow the Israelites to go? There would have been no race shut away in the hills of Palestine, keeping in safe custody the Oracles of Jehovah, the worship of the One God, proclaiming the coming of some Great One Who was to save the world.

If the Jewish race, dispersed throughout the world, in their captivities, had not settled down in their newfound countries, and started in business, until they became the world's greatest financiers? The fact that they did has altered again and again the aspect on history.

What would have happened if Pontius Pilate, the Roman Governor of Jerusalem, had taken the advice of his wife, been true to the vision for which he was supposed to stand—the one thing on which the Romans prided themselves—the principle of Justice—not feared his past history, and been afraid of it being reported to the Emperor, and so released the Man Whom he knew to be innocent? He was not, as so many people imagine, the blind instrument of Fate, destined to do a deed which has made his name a reproach throughout the ages, he was given every chance, but he couldn't face his past.

If the eleven cowards, who had forsaken their Master and fled, had not dared to stand up like heroes, on the Day of Pentecost, and at the risk of their lives, proclaim the certainty of a risen Lord to the crowds, thronging the streets of Jerusalem?

If they had not obeyed His last command on the hilltop of Olivet, to go out into all the world, and preach the Gospel, now committed solely to their charge?

If the Church of Jerusalem had listened to the croakers, who said (as they say to-day), "why bother about the heathen in other countries, we have enough in our own, let us look after them."

If Saul of Tarsus had not received that vision on the road to Damascus, which for ever changed his life. If he had been drowned in the shipwreck on the way to Rome. If worn out and weary with all the sufferings and privations he had undergone, in the cause of the Master he loved, he had decided to quit, and leave the missionary job he had undertaken to other hands, or let it lapse altogether?

If the Early Church, feeling that the risk was too great, and life too precious, had decided to hide themselves in obscurity, and safeguard their own skins, keep from the rest of the world the good news which was theirs, and so allow Christianity to die in its infancy?

If the Martyrs of the first four centuries had held life dearer than the love of Christ, and recanted their faith, had not by their life blood sown the seed of the Church.

If Constantine the Great had been defeated by Maxentius at the battle of the Milvian Bridge, after he had sworn that if he won it, he would make Christianity the religion of the Roman world, and grant civil rights and toleration to Christians throughout the world?

If the Council of Northumbria, which met to decide whether the old gods of the Islands, or the new faith from Gallilee should be the religion of the English people, had decided for the former?

If Gregory had not been so taken with the slave boys from Anglia that in later years he sent Augustine to England?

If Martin Luther, and Calvin and John Wesley had not been born?

There are a hundred and one more "IFS" you can work out for yourselves, some wet day when you can't go to Fanling. It won't help your golf, but it will reduce your mental handicap by several strokes!

LAID UP TONNAGE.

The United States tonnage laid up at the beginning of this year was 3,080,000. In 1928 it was already 2,978,000 tons. For other countries the figures for steamers and motorships are Great Britain 539,000 gross tons in 1928, and 2,910,000 tons in 1932. Italy 274,000 and 807,000. Germany 80,000 and 700,000. Holland 16,000 and 595,000. France 80,000 and 748,000. The total laid up tonnage on January 1, 1932, was 16 per cent. of the world's mercantile tonnage.

Rome, August 1.

Though food is dearer, on the whole, in Italy than in England, prices now compare favourably with those in 1926, which were 80 per cent. more than they are to-day.

The Official Statistics Bureau states that prices of commodities appear to be settling down to a level. But a return to pre-war prices, which were exceedingly high, cannot be hoped for.

DeclineSerious Fate Faces Western States

DEPOPULATION THREAT

Geneva, August 1.
Changes in the structure of the population of most highly civilized countries with a gradual falling off in birth rates are reported in official vital statistics compiled by the health section of the League of Nations.

England, France, Italy and Germany all show rapidly declining birth rates, with the death rates practically stationary. Germany's records show the maximum in decline in both birth and death rates. Since the first of this century Germany's birth rate has decreased 47 per cent. and her death rate 39 per cent. By arresting her death rate, Germany, as well as Austria, Hungary and a few other states, has been able to offset the effects of diminishing fecundity.

What is Happening.
In Italy, where Premier Mussolini is encouraging large families, the death rate has declined more than the birth rate.

France, where the population has been nearly stationary for sixty years, for a long time had the lowest birth rate among civilized nations. Now she stands ahead of Britain, Austria, Sweden, Norway and Switzerland. But even so, whereas there were 1,400,000 births in France in 1868 and 915,000 in 1891, they had dropped to 741,000 in 1930 and are still dropping. It is estimated that before the beginning of the next century France's population will have decreased by one-half.

The United States was not included in the twenty-nine countries considered in the survey, but a similar tendency is noted there, according to census returns. The rate of population increase 40 years ago was about 3 per cent.; 20 years ago it was 2 per cent.; to-day it is 1 per cent. In Europe, Poland is the only country to show an increased birth rate; of extra-European countries, Japan.

For this century, of the 29 countries studied, nine show a decreased birth rate of more than a third; eight others show declines of from 23 per cent. to 33 per cent.

To-day's Increases Compared.

In Britain, Germany, Norway, Sweden and Belgium the natural increase of population to-day is about one-quarter of what it was 25 years ago. In Austria, Switzerland and France it is one-half. In Japan, Portugal, Spain, Ireland and Russia there are greater natural increases than in 1900.

One deduction from the survey is that mortality to-day is substantially the same in rural as in urban districts, while the birth rate is lower in towns than in the country. Likewise the proportion of elderly people is greater now than in the past.

What will happen when population of highly developed countries ceases to grow is an interesting question. That the political, social and economic world structure will be vitally affected, no one doubts.

In view of the varying birth rates and death rates the future military strength of the European nations is anyone's guess. With Japan's, China's and India's fecundity increasing, the threat of the East is more than a mirage.

The serious decrease of marriages, due to the severity of the economic crisis; the reduced generation during the World War, the effect of which will become noticeable between 1935 and 1940, the impending stabilization of birth and death rates and the rapid spread of the birth control movement are all factors in a possible accelerated population decline within the next five years.

Among European cities, Berlin's birth rate, 8.8 per 1,000, is the lowest. Oslo, capital of Norway, comes next with 9 per 1,000. Paris reports 14.5 and London 14.6 per 1,000.

New York's birth rate is 16 and Chicago's 14 per 1,000.

NORTON WINS FRESH TRACK SUCCESS.

Achieves "Double" in Tourist Trophy Races.

FIRST THREE PLACES.

The famous Norton motor-cycle, for which The Sincere Co. are local agents, has won new success.

Norton machines were successful in winning both the Senior and Junior Tourist Trophy Races this year and last year, so that a record has now been established which has never before been accomplished by any single make of machine.

In the Senior race last year, Norton machines were first, second and third: this year, this performance was repeated. Until last year for a period of 20 years, no machine had been first, second and third in the Senior Tourist Trophy Race. This is a remarkable feat of consistency.

In the Junior Tourist Trophy Race, the four Norton Works riders were successful in beating the previous year's lap record in the first lap, and it must be borne in mind that the first lap is from a standing start. At the end of the first lap Norton machines were 1, 2, 3 and 5. Stanley Woods was leading the race: in the first lap he broke the lap record by one minute, at an average speed of 77.16 m.p.h.

One Man Drops. Unfortunately in the second lap Percy Hunt, who was riding in second place, was forced to retire, but Stanley Woods again broke the lap record at a speed of 78.5 m.p.h., J. H. Simpson also breaking last year's lap record.

On the third lap Stanley Woods again broke the lap record, averaging 78.62 m.p.h., this record remaining unbroken during the remainder of the race.

On the fourth lap, J. Guthrie crashed at Craig-ny-lan, having to retire at the pits owing to damage sustained to his machine.

It would appear, and was expressed on all hands, that Norton machines, although the winners of the race, had extremely bad luck in view of the mishaps to both Percy Hunt and J. Guthrie. J. H. Simpson unfortunately failed to finish, but S. Woods had a "no trouble run" and recorded the highest speed at which a Junior Tourist Trophy Race has ever been run, averaging a speed of 77.16 m.p.h.

In the Senior Tourist Trophy Race, already referred to, a standard of consistency was established that has never before been recorded by any machine other than the Norton. Here again, although the performance is so outstanding, ill-luck befell Percy Hunt, the winner of last year's Senior Tourist Trophy Race. Hunt immediately after the start hit Bradden Bridge, damaging his machine, so that he was unable to proceed. At the end of the first lap, however, J. H. Simpson was leading at a speed of 79.85 m.p.h., Stanley Woods held second place at a speed of 79.57 m.p.h. and J. Guthrie was fifth at a speed of 78.28 m.p.h.

On the second lap J. H. Simpson broke the lap record by lapping in 27.47 minutes, the fastest speed ever accomplished in the Island. J. Guthrie, who was lying fifth at the end of the first lap, increased his speed and rode into fourth place, the lap leaders then being:

1st.—J. H. Simpson, at a speed of 80.78 m.p.h.
2nd.—S. Woods, at a speed of 80.68 m.p.h.
4th.—J. Guthrie, at a speed of 79.15 m.p.h.

Faster Still.—The third lap saw a further increase in the speed of Norton riders, who were now increasing the lead they had over their rivals and Woods took the lead from Simpson, which lead he retained till the end of the race. The third lap gave Woods first position at a speed of 80.87 m.p.h. J. H. Simpson being second at a speed of 80.63 m.p.h. and Guthrie fourth at a speed of 79.51 m.p.h.

On the fourth lap, Norton machines having a lead, signals were given from the pits for the riders to slow down. At the end of the fourth lap the positions were:

1st.—S. Woods, at a speed of 80.05 m.p.h.
2nd.—J. H. Simpson, at a speed of 79.24 m.p.h.
3rd.—J. Guthrie, at a speed of 78.71 m.p.h.

At the end of the fifth lap, the riders still under instructions to slow down owing to the lead that they had obtained.

In the sixth lap the positions remained identical, only disaster could prevent a Norton machine winning this, the Blue Riband of all motor cycle events.

On the last and seventh lap the leading position remained unchanged, Stanley Woods winning the race at an average speed of 79.38 m.p.h. J. Guthrie being second at a speed of 78.48 m.p.h. and J. H. Simpson third at a speed of 78.38 m.p.h., all three Norton machines beating the previous winning time.

At the conclusion of the Junior Race, as is usual, the machines were officially taken down for inspection. The following is an extract from "The Motor Cycle," whose technical representative was present at the examination: "Stanley Woods' Norton was in excellent condition: cylinder head, valves, valve springs, rockers and cylinder bore were in perfect condition. The ringed piston was nicely bright and only slightly carbonized. The rings were bright and undamaged and not a trace of play could be found in the connecting rod bearings: the cylinder head joint was true and all the working parts were just 'nicely oiled.'"

"The Motor Cycle" says of the Norton machines there is little to be said except that the three Nortons were in amazing good conditions. There was not the slightest visible fault in any one of the engines, valves, springs, tappet clearances, cylinder bores, plugs and cylinder heads were in beautiful order."

REQUIREMENTS OF BUS FLEETS.

How Petrol Is Delivered.

London, Aug. 1.

An interesting feature in the design of two of the latest of the London General Omnibus Co.'s garages is the manner in which the whole of the floor space has been kept clear of petrol metering columns, water points and lubricating oil points.

The columns have been fitted into a large room overlooking the garage on the lines of an ordinary railway signal box; from this room, taken out on to the rafters, are petrol, oil and water pipes, which lead to the points where the "buses" are filled. When a "bus" requires filling, the petrol, lubricating oil and water hoses are lowered by means of small winches and the requirements are delivered to the "bus" under the eye of the operator in the signal room. As each "bus" is replenished, the actual amount delivered is recorded on a machine, and the hoses are then re-hoisted to the rafters.

The Birmingham Corporation opened a new "bus garage" recently; this cost £27,000 to erect, and is equipped with a Hammond low-pressure petrol metering columns with a storage capacity of 50,000 gallons.

Some idea of the speed with which the petrol filling requirements of these big "bus fleets" are met may be gathered from the installation at the British Tramways and Carriage Co., which is typical. This concern is now operating 5 Hammond metering columns connected to four 12,500 and four 5,000-gallon tanks. The layout is so designed that any of the columns can be drawn from any of the tanks as required by means of selector valves. When the plant is in full operation, 100 gallons of petrol are discharged to "buses" in one minute from the five filling points.

HALL-MARK OF A GOOD DRIVER.

"Pass Me" Jokers in Speed Cars.

FAVOURITE TROPIC.

London, Aug. 1.

Wherever motorists gather together there will be arguments. Average speeds is perhaps the favourite topic discussed by the owner-driver, but a very good second, in my experience, is on the subject of "What is the hall-mark of a good driver?"

This week-end I was involved in it. It is, unfortunately, true that there are still many motorists who believe that a good driver is the driver who can travel between two points in the shortest possible time, writes Norman Rae in the "Evening Standard." It is, of course, true that the experienced driver can put up much higher averages than the average driver, but there is more in driving than merely "stepping on the gas."

I was asked for my opinion. I maintained that a good driver is one who can travel at a fair speed at any time without inconveniencing either himself or anyone else on the road—one who is conversant with all the written and unwritten laws of the road, and who puts them into practice on any and every occasion.

A Cross-Road Episode. The discussion was prompted by an experience which, in company with my friends, I had had at the junction of the Watford by-pass and the old St. Albans Road. At this junction, admittedly a very dangerous one, the driver of a fast sports car who obviously knew how to handle his motor had pulled up right alongside the A.A. scout. He was apparently uncertain of his way. In stopping where he did he held up traffic in every direction for nearly two minutes, besides which he jeopardised the safety of at least three cars following behind.

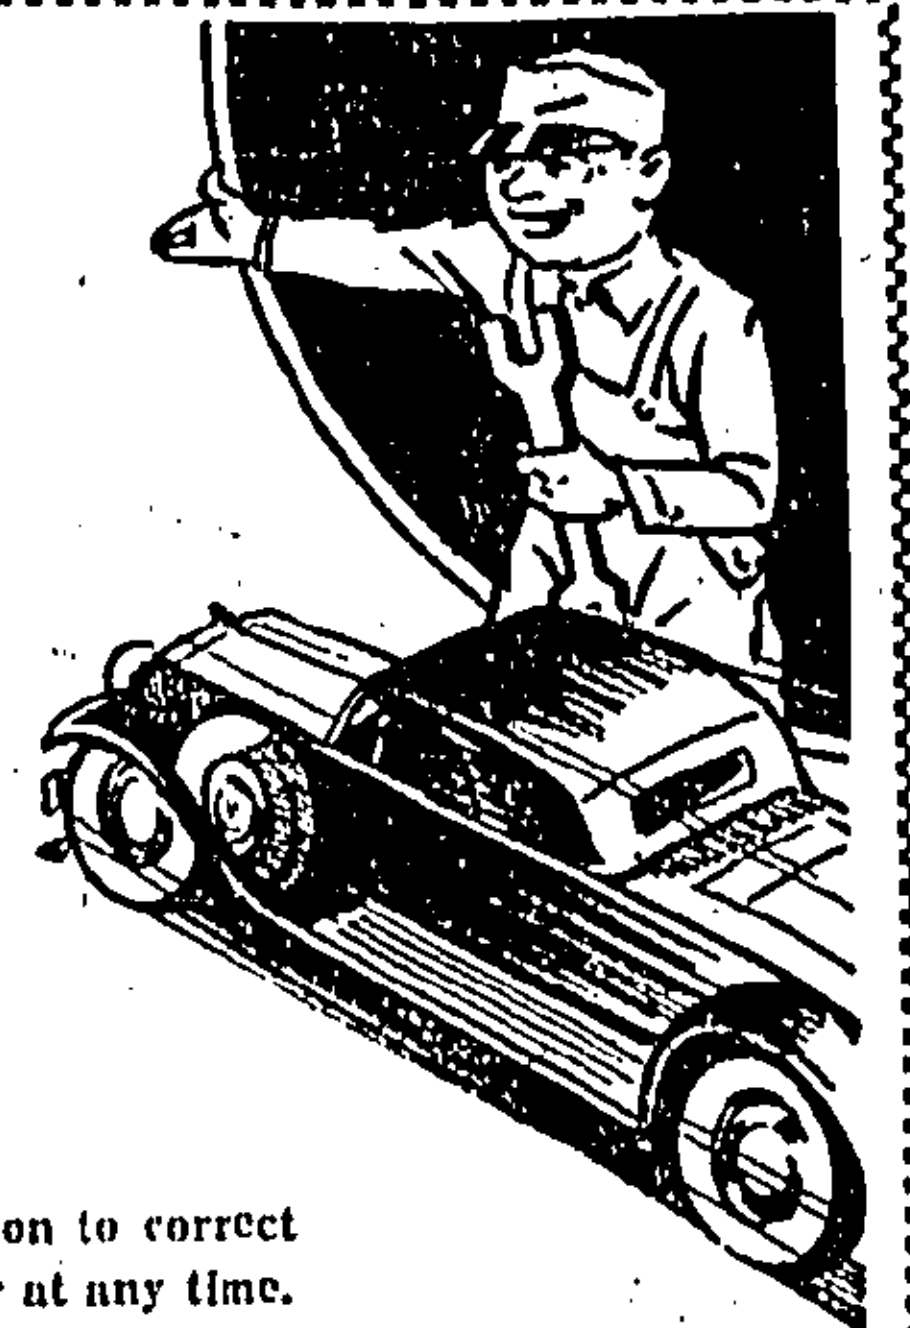

When remonstrated with the driver stated that he had been driving motor cars for 20 years, and

We're EXPERTS

THROUGH years of experience, during which time we have handled practically every known make of car, we have qualified as experts in this business.

COSTS Are Low

immediately afterwards proceeded to demonstrate his ability as a driver by outdistancing every one of the complainants.

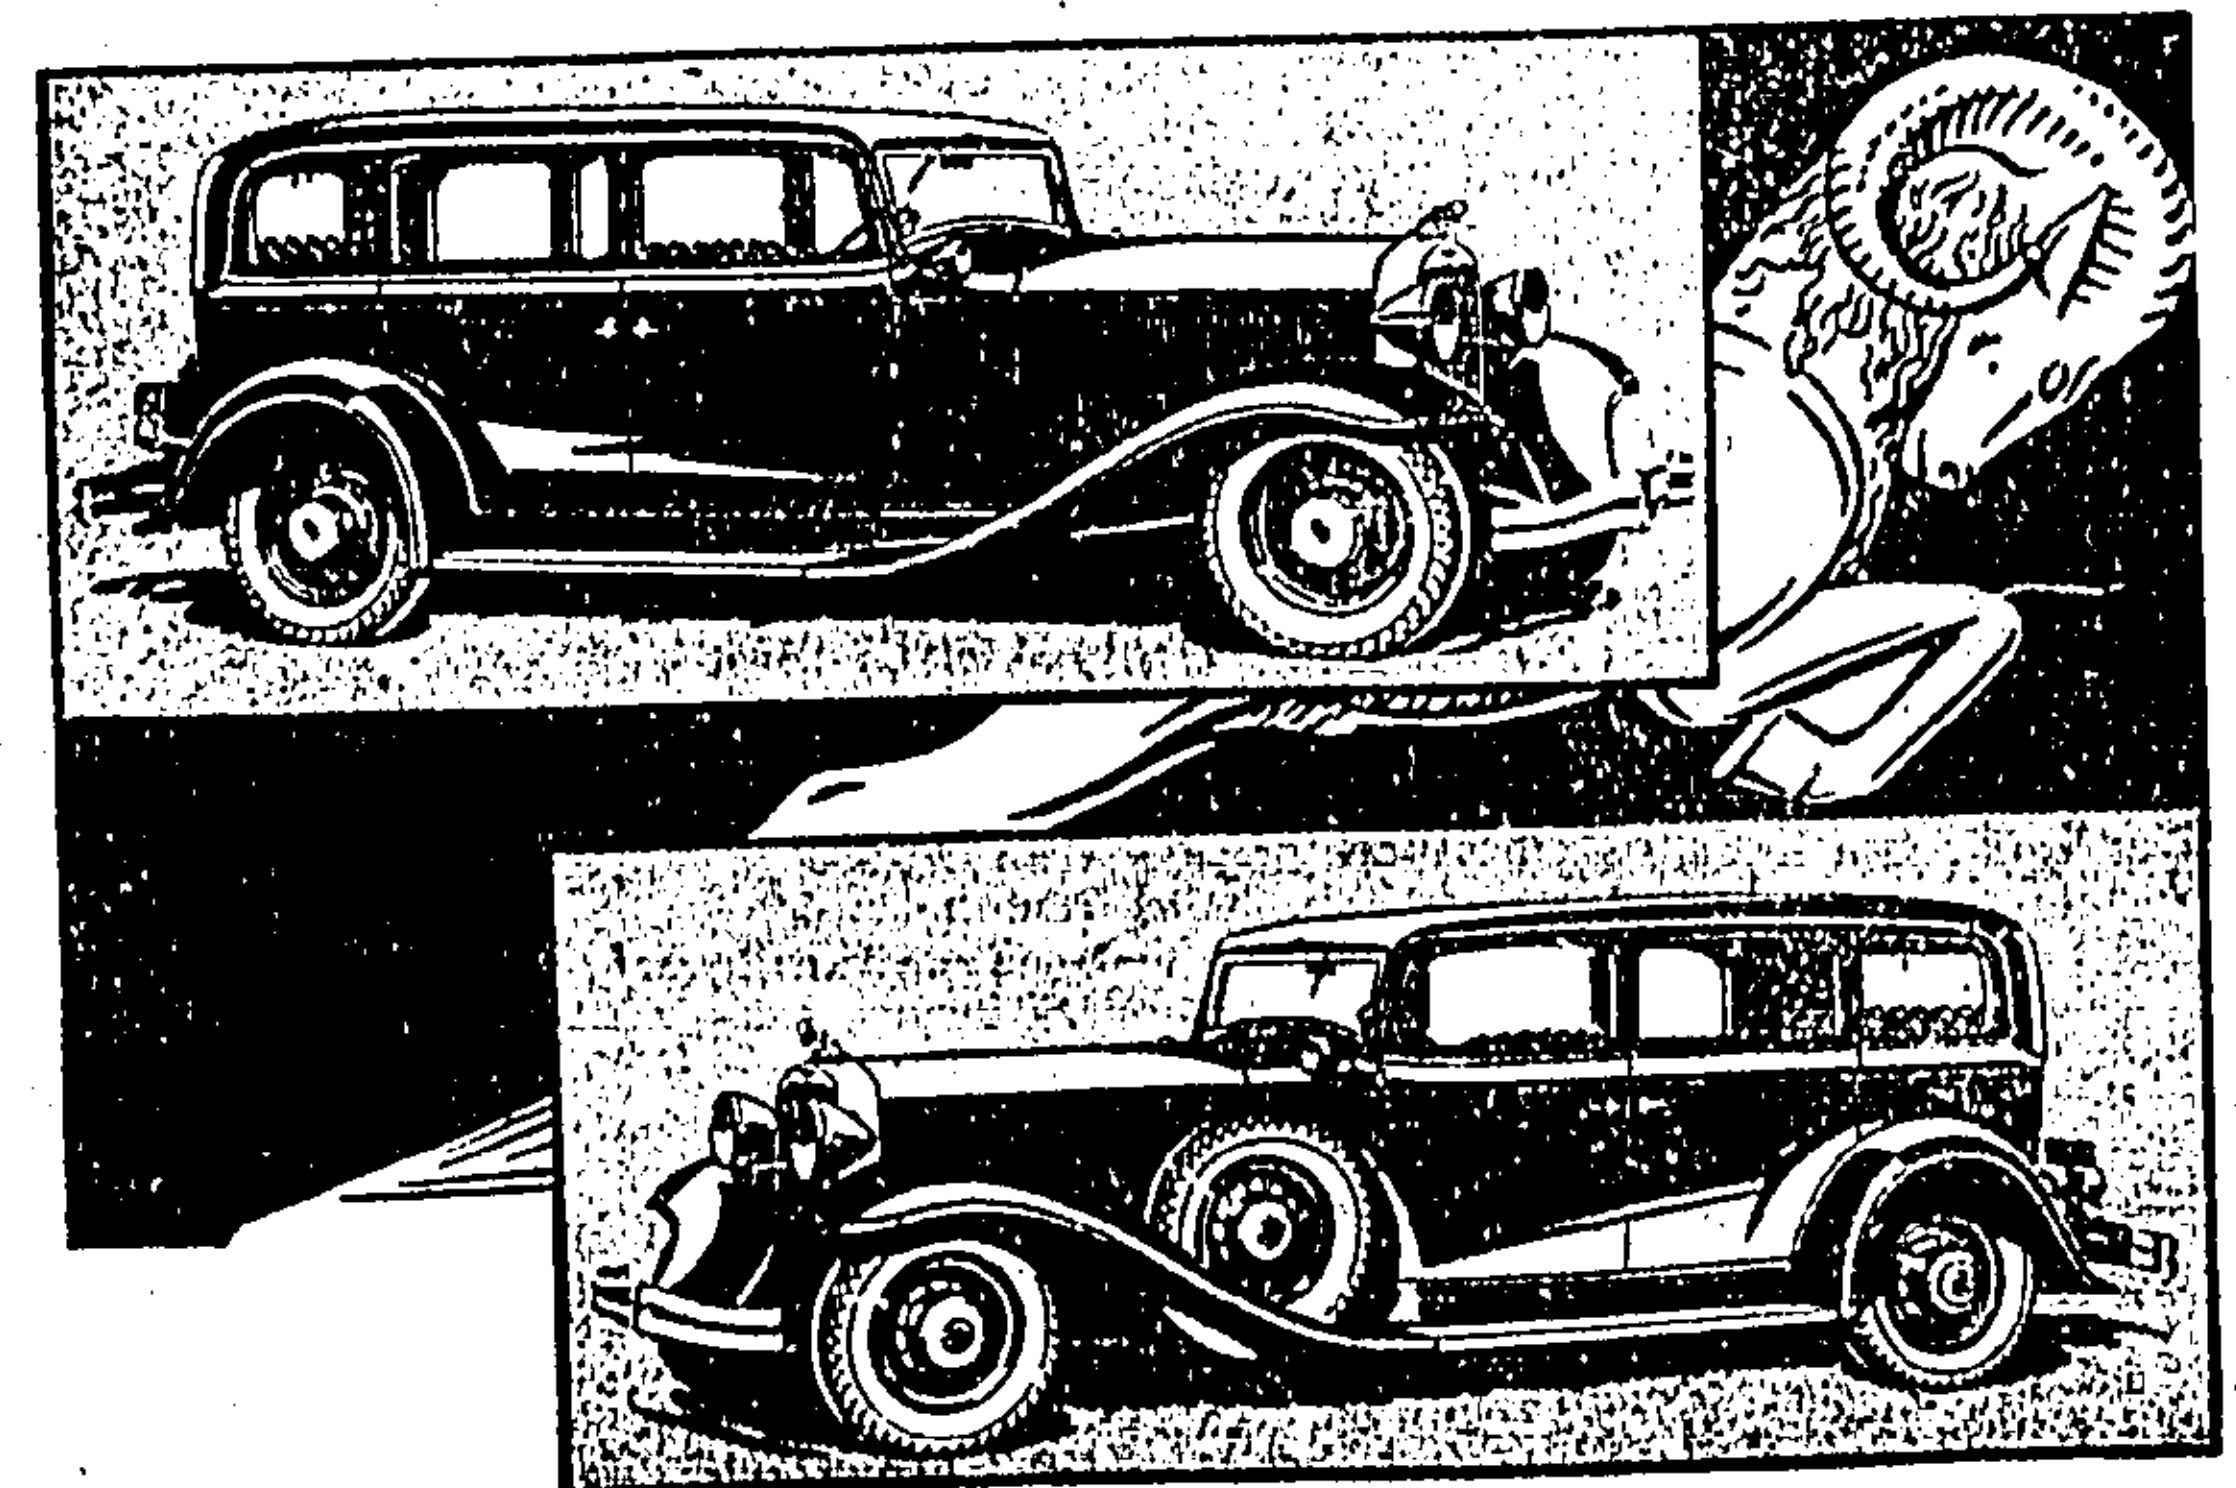

That he could handle a motor-car there was no doubt, but that he had omitted to learn that he owed a duty to other road users was equally apparent.

Dangerous Habit. This habit of pulling up at dangerous and busy cross-roads, to ask the way seems to be on the increase. It is a selfish and unnecessary practice. It means a little extra trouble but it is safer to drive on 20 yards or so, park the car at the roadside and walk back.

Following this experience we discussed the make-up of a good driver. The ultimate decision was that a good driver is one who does not impede other road users either by dawdling along in the middle of the road at between 20 and 30 miles an hour, or by unnecessary cutting-in when travelling fast; one who does not slam on his brakes suddenly; to the danger of cars following behind, and who keeps close in to his own side of the road when going round acute bends; a driver who makes up his mind what to do and does it, and who does not mind being passed by a faster car.

There are many drivers of fast cars to-day who seem to take a delight in giving the "pass me" signal and then accelerating. They do this, apparently, to prove that they are the owners of really fast cars, but in proving the speed of their vehicles they also prove their own lack of regard for other road users.

BRITISH CAR SALES ADVANCING.

Continued Prosperity
Indicated.

SPEED LESSONS.

London, July 20.

Recently published figures of imports and exports for the first five months of the year make encouraging reading for those with the welfare of the British motor industry at heart, and are fine testimony to the ability of the manufacturers in admittedly difficult times.

The imports of cars and chassis have fallen from 6,870 for the first 5 months of 1930, and 2,229 in 1931, to 1,394 during the same period this year. As for exports, the corresponding figures are 14,356 in 1930, 10,427 in 1931 and 15,840 this year. The latter result is the largest ever recorded with the exception of the period 1927-9, when exports were enormously swollen by very large consignments of chassis to Australia.

Indications of continued prosperity in the trade are visible from Coventry, where the Triumph Co. reports sales 39 per cent. higher than those of last year. The Super Seven, which is actually more expensive than competitive cars, is selling extremely well, as are also the 9 h.p. and light 6-cylinder cars. To-day is certainly the day of the light car and this concern which is the only British firm specialising in the manufacture of both light four and 6-cylinder cars, is reaping its reward.

New Cleanliness.

On the motor cycle side, the Triumph Co. has introduced a machine with outstanding features as regards cleanliness. Stiff side panels cover all the working parts and are turned outwards at the forward ends to form leg shields. The machine can thus be hosed down just like a car, while the panels actually improve the radiation of air round the cylinder, for they act as a scoop.

In sporting events, it is good to hear of the performance of Woolfe on his 350 c.c. S.V. Ariel in the recent Durban to Johannesburg race in South Africa. This great speed event is open to motor cycles of unlimited power and is over a distance of 403 miles, the road conditions being notoriously bad in places. To have smashed all previous records for the 350 c.c. class and to have finished third against machines of unlimited power is a particularly praiseworthy achievement.

What Speed Has Taught.

This year's Royal Air Force Pageant at Hendon was perhaps even more interesting than usual, owing to the greatly increased speed of all types of Service aircraft, which results from Britain's successes in the last three Schneider Trophy contests.

Many of the machines were specially released from the Air Ministry's secret list and were on view for the first time. The present holder of the world's speed record, for instance, Flt.-Lt. Stainforth, flew a new type of fighter machine, the "Terro," of which nothing is known beyond the fact that it is fitted with Rolls-Royce "Kestrel" engines. This is the engine fitted to the Hawker "Fury," the fastest fighter aircraft in the world. Specially designed for the defence of London, it will fly at over 200 m.p.h., and will climb 20,000 ft. in 9 mins. 44 secs.

Maintenance Hints For Owner Drivers Sticking Valves And Their Treatment

PREVENTION METHODS

CHANGE OF OIL IMPORTANT FACTOR.

This question of valves reminds us of a case which we came across the other day when, in the course of a long run, a pronounced tapping noise developed in an engine and a tendency towards missing was noticed at low speeds. As the driver was in a hurry and the noise did not get any more prominent, he completed his journey of over 100 miles and felt quite aggrieved when subsequent investigation at the service depot revealed an exhaust valve so badly burnt as to make its replacement inevitable. Furthermore, the seating in the block had suffered, so that had to be treated with a cutter before the new valve could be put in place.

If this owner had stopped as soon as the noise developed, he could have taken steps which would probably have cured the trouble, so saving the labour of removing the cylinder head and the cost of replacing a valve. What had actually occurred was that the presence of gummy deposits on this exhaust valve stem prevented the valve from closing fully when the hump of the cam left the tappet. Hot gases were thereby allowed to escape past the valve seating during the firing stroke, with the natural result that the head became overheated and burnt.

Apart from very obstinate cases, sticking valves can usually be freed by injecting a mixture of paraffin and thin oil into the stream of air entering the carburettor, this being done after setting the hand throttle in such a position that the engine is running fairly fast. It is rather curious that some engines seem more prone to develop this trouble than do others. Prevention being better than cure, it is a good plan to mix an appreciable quantity of the petrol in the tank, which is usually found to make the valves less liable to stick. It is also a good plan to employ really good kinds of fuel and lubricating oil for the engine.

Frequent draining of the sump and replenishment with new oil is, undoubtedly, one of the most important factors ensuring prolonged freedom from cylinder wear and bearing trouble. It may appear cheapest to make up the level with pints or quarts of oil every few days but after several thousand miles the oil becomes so dirty and diluted that the small quantities added are quickly contaminated, and one does not gain the full benefit therefrom.

Follow the maker's instructions and drain the sump every 1,200-2,000 miles, depending upon the size of the engine, the sump capacity and so on. For a small engine it is advisable to do it every 1,200-1,500 miles and not allow it to go any longer. It will be found most economical in the long run, and many enthusiastic owners who make this a golden rule have found that after a big mileage, say, 15,000-16,000 miles, there is no great increase in oil consumption.

Make sure that all the sludge is removed by having the sump flushed out if the work is done for you at a service depot, or, if you do it yourself, use one of the special flushing oils. Any sludge left will contaminate the new oil. Make sure, too, that the drain plug is tightened up thoroughly before you put in the new lubricant.

been greatly exceeded. It is worth recalling that in 1907 the total number of chassis produced was 53, while to-day one day's average output is in excess of that number. The London distributors of these cars are Shaw and Kilburn, whose Leave Car scheme is well known to many visitors from Overseas.

CHANGING TRAFFIC LIGHTS.

London, August 1.

Recently a conviction for disobeying a traffic signal was registered against a motorist who contended that he was so close to the light when it changed that dangerously violent braking would have been necessary for him to stop. This case illustrates a disadvantage of traffic lights against which all motorists must be on their guard. The wisest view is that if a car cannot be stopped before the lights change without dangerous braking which might cause a skid the driver should proceed. The amber light lasts long enough for this to be done in safety, and it is one of the reasons for fitting the amber light. Drivers, however, must not try to race the lights.

THRILLS OF THE SENIOR T.T.

"Hell Diver" Handley
In Ditch.

HAIR-RAISING ESCAPES.

The winner of the junior motor-cycle T.T. race, Stanley Woods, the Dublin coffee manufacturer, came in first in the senior race at the Tourist Trophy meet at the Isle of Man. It was a day of hair-raising escapes, marred by a serious crash by Wal Handley—his first in ten years of racing.

The Norton team triumphed the results being:—
1. Stanley Woods (Norton): 79.33 m.p.h.
2. J. Guthrie (Norton): 78.47 m.p.h.
3. J. Simpson (Norton): 78.38 m.p.h.

Before the race was five minutes old "Tim" Hunt, who won both senior and junior events last year, was flung from his machine at 70 m.p.h. while rounding the Braddon Bridge "S" bend.

He rolled over and over for more than 100 yards, then picked himself up unhurt, but his machine was smashed.

Jimmy Simpson, the "win or bust" rider in the Norton camp, drove like a man possessed from the start, breaking his own lap record.

His riding on the corners terrified most of the spectators, but he could not leave behind his rival, Wal Handley, chief star of the Rudge team.

Handley—surely the world's finest motor-cycle racer—had thrown caution to the wind and fully deserved his title of "Hell-diver."

He shot down Bray Hill towards the sharp corner at the bottom, at more than 105 miles an hour, and skidded round the corner, his rear wheel sometimes leading his front wheel.

In the third lap Handley took his final risk.

Dash Into Ditch.

He tried to take the Barra Garrow corner too fast, and to the horror of the crowd his machine dashed into the ditch.

Handley was flung into a field—his first crash in more than 10 years of motor-cycle racing.

He was taken to hospital, and was found to have a badly injured knee, a broken wrist, and slight injuries to his head.

"I went head first into a brick wall," he said.

Woods said that he had "a fairly comfortable" ride in the circumstances.

His speed down the side of the mountain was about 108 m.p.h., he said, and added, "I had a few close shaves, but nothing to worry about."

Of the 33 starters, 17 finished.

Amusing Incident.

After Prince George had watched the Senior T.T. motor cycle race he presented the Trophy to the winner, Stanley Woods, and distributed the other awards. In a speech, the Prince said that racing kept British motor cycles and engines pre-eminent, and he hoped that the T.T. would flourish, and that this would not be the last time he would witness the race as a thrilled spectator. "The Motor Cycle" relates an amusing incident that occurred as Prince George was leaving Craig-in-Bua, one of the points from which he watched the race. "So long, chum!" called out a jocular spectator. "So long," replied the Royal visitor, cheerfully.

HOW PETROL IS WASTED.

Some Economy Tips
Outlined.

RUBBING BRAKES.

Motorists who are desirous, from choice or necessity, to economise in petrol consumption can do so by avoiding certain driving habits that are common to the majority.

In the first place they should restrict their average and maximum speeds, instead of driving "all out" whenever it is safe to do so. Every car has its most economical speed; on top gear it usually ranges between 25 and 35 m.p.h. on a level road. Above that speed the rate of petrol consumption increases almost in proportion to the increase in m.p.h. A car that runs, say, 30 miles to the gallon when doing 30 m.p.h. may run only 28 m.p.g. at 40 m.p.h., 26 m.p.g. at 45 m.p.h., and 2 m.p.g. less for every 5 m.p.h. increase of speed.

Novices have been met with who imagined that the quicker a given distance is covered the less petrol will be used; that is, of course, quite wrong.

Next, frequent and forcible use of the brakes increases the rate of petrol consumption. The speed at which the braking commences has probably been gained by using the petrol in the engine, and an appreciable proportion of that petrol is wasted if the speed is "thrown away" (i.e. reduced) in the form of brake friction.

Gear Changing.
So to economise in petrol, corners and traffic blocks should be approached with a gradual reduction of speed due to the early release of the accelerator.

Delay in changing gear on steep hills may increase the petrol consumption, for not infrequently it means that the lowest gear must be used where, with an early change down from top to second, the latter would suffice.

Many gallons of petrol in all are wasted by drivers who keep their engines running unnecessarily with the car standing—waiting for a passenger to get ready, or to make some purchase in a shop, for example. The engine should be stopped whenever the car will have to remain stationary for more than a minute or so.

Brakes that rub their drums in the "off" position cause waste of petrol. They may rub because they are improperly adjusted or because the lubrication of the shafts, joints, etc., has been neglected; in the latter case the "take-off" springs are not strong enough to overcome the excessive friction of unlubricated and possibly rusty parts.

Among other ways of gaining petrol economy are to refrain from using a cheap and inferior grade of engine oil, to keep the ignition details in good trim and the valve adjustments correct, and, not least important, to keep the tyres correctly inflated according to the maker's chart of pressures.

GIFT TO POLICE.

The Austrian Touring Club has recently presented a sum of money to the Austrian police authorities for the purchase of white capes for traffic constables, in order to render them more conspicuous and consequently less likely to meet with accidents.

It is revealed that the Ford Motor Co. (U.S.A.) suffered a loss for 1931 of $10,500,000. During 1930 the profits were $9,000,000, and in 1929 $16,500,000.

TRADE EXHIBITION BY MOTOR.

Party's Progress in Many Lands.

London, August 14.

The British trade development expedition through Europe, Asia Minor, and Africa, which started early last year under the leadership of Captain Geoffrey Mallus, has reported its progress from Rhodesia. The convoy of six British vehicles, which includes two six-cylinder Rileys fitted with floating apparatus to enable them to cross rivers, is carrying a selection of British manufactured goods and exhibiting them along its route. Since leaving Europe the journey has occupied 138 days, and 13,000 miles have been covered. In Syria and Palestine the travellers found the roads equal to the best in Europe, but they have had extremely rough and difficult going in other parts. They spent six days in the Libyan desert, with the temperature at 118 deg. in the shade, and towards the end the convoy's water was in danger of giving out, so that the ration was reduced for each man to a quart a day.

In contrast to this experience was a 17 days' struggle through mud and swamps after the crossing of the Taurus Mountains. Exceptionally late rains delayed them for eight weeks in El Obeld, and heavy rain was encountered on the journey through Southern Kenya and Tanganyika. Capetown is the ultimate objective and the making of a travel film is part of the programme.

appeared to slacken slightly, and Gittins got into the lead. Then came a neck to neck finish, with Gittins, who was the faster man, just gaining the verdict. Gittins' time was 26-3/5 secs., the same as last year's champion, W. Lawrence.

Portuguese Carry Relay.
The Portuguese Company entered two teams in the relay race, their "A" team, composed of some of the best swimmers in the colony. The Portuguese Company entered two teams in the relay race, their performance of last year. The Machine Gun Company were worthy seconds, while the Portuguese "B" were third, C. M. Silva gaining the verdict by a touch from Donn, who swam last for the Scottish Company. The Anzac Company were unplaced.

The water polo game played between the Volunteer Corps and the United Services provided some exciting play. The Corps led by two goals to nil at half-time, both points being scored by S. V. Gittins. In the second half, W. Lawrence added two more goals as the result of smart passing. Campbell replied once for the Services.

Presentation Of Trophies.
Throughout the swimming events, the Corps Band played popular selections. At the conclusion of the sports, the prizes were distributed by Miss Hallifax, daughter of the Colonial Secretary (the Hon. Mr. E. R. Hallifax, C.M.G., C.B.E.) Captain E. J. R. Mitchell, Chairman of the Committee, heartily congratulated the Portuguese Company on their marked success.

Dancing was then indulged in to the strains of the Cheer-O Band, with Mr. G. W. E. True at the piano.

50 Yards Free Style Handicap.
There were 3 heats originally scheduled for this event, but owing to the non-arrival of several of the competitors, it was decided to combine heats 1 and 2. The following swam:—Pte. J. J. King, Pte. E. Lawrence, Pte. E. Marques, Pte. E. A. Remedios, and Pte. G. F. Victor.

King, who received a handicap of 4 secs., took an early lead and maintained it easily, finishing first in 30-3/5 secs., with Marques second in 29-3/5 secs.

The following competed in Heat 3:—Pte. M. A. Baptista, Pte. N. A. Beltrao, Pte. C. Dalziel, Pte. C. T. Champelovier, and Pte. J. J. Lima.

At the conclusion of the first length of this race, Baptista took the lead but failed to take full advantage of the turn, and allowed Lima to come smartly ahead of him to finish first in 33 secs. Baptista was second with 30-2/5 secs. to his credit.

50 Yards Championship.
The following contested:—Pte. A. Donn (Scottish Co.), Pte. S. V. Gittins (M.G. Co.), L/Cpl. W. Lawrence (Portuguese Co.), and Pte. E. B. da Rosa (Portuguese Co.).

A great roar of anticipation greeted the four swimmers who lined up for this event. With the word "Go" the water became a thrashing maelstrom as bodies squirmed and ploughed their way through.

There was little enough between the contestants at the end of the first length, but immediately after and as a result of the turn, Donn and da Rosa had the misfortune to interfere accidentally with each other, and thereby ruined their chances.

Gittins, however, swimming in splendid style, forged steadily ahead and finished first in 26-3/5 secs., with Lawrence a close second in 27 secs. Da Rosa finished third.

100 Yards Free Style Handicap.
For this event there were insufficient competitors for the two heats originally planned, and it was decided to despatch the race in one heat. The following contested:—Pte. N. A. Beltrao, Pte. J. Remedios, Pte. A. V. Gosano, Pte. A. D. Lawson, Pte. E. A. V. Remedios, and L/Cpl. M. M. do V. Soares.

The race which was accompanied by frenzied exhortations from the onlookers, provided a very gallant battle between the two finalists, Gosano and Soares, with Lawson, the scratch man, threatening to snatch victory at the very finish. The lead which Gosano had early established prevailed, however, and he finished first in 52.2 secs., with Soares second in 51.8 secs. Lawson fought into an easy third place.

100 Yards Medley Championship.

EASIER GOLF

by H. STUART HOBSON

Expressions We Use In Golf.

NO. 16: CONFIDENCE.

MASTERY THAT EXCELS IN A CRISIS.

A great deal has been heard lately of the "match-winning temperament" of the American golfers. Certainly, some of them seem to possess a little something that some other players lack. Gene Sarazen gave a practical demonstration recently. His approach to a sloping green left him in the rough at the top of the slope, just behind a hummock. The shot demanded that the hummock be cleared and the ball stopped dead on the green below it.

This is one of the most difficult shots in golf, and Sarazen was asked to play it with spectators at his elbow and all round him.

The huge gallery, in fact, crowded closer to see what Sarazen would make of this shot.

Gene took a nibble and hit down behind the ball with every ounce of force that he could muster. It was a terrific blow. The ball shot high into the air and dropped on to the green to spin backwards vigorously on the slope and stop within two feet of the pin.

Playing the Shot.
Many a golfer would have hesitated to make the shot for fear of missing it. A good many more—leading professionals among them—would have hesitated to hit with the force that Sarazen used for fear of injuring a spectator. Sarazen saw the shot that was asked for—and played it.

There is something very different in this department from that of the golfer who gets "rattled" when a spectator passes a remark about a shot of his.

One player once said to me that a good golfer is never put off his game by any external incident. That is splendid in theory, but unfortunately not strictly true in fact. Even Bobby Jones, when a younger man than he is now, sometimes got out of temper with himself and his clubs.

But that, other things being equal, the player who can control his temperament will go farther in not to be doubted.

A player who is over-confident is apt to lose his self-control when things go against him, but even he is in a better position than one who is lacking in confidence.

Golf Mastery.
The great thing is to find the point between confidence and over-confidence, which is mastery.

Two good shots at the beginning of the game can give such confidence as to assure good form for the golfer for the rest of the day.

And how are these good shots to be made? One thing is certain. Those shots the player thinks hardest about are practically never the best. And the reason can be given in one word club-head. Experience of every fault in golf, and the curing of it, will prove that failure to get the club-head through before the body comes round is far and away the most usual root of evil. When a player is thinking calmly, and swinging easily, the club-head comes through. Once he loses confidence, and begins to wonder what is wrong with his swing, he stiffens up. The characteristic snap of the wrists is lost, and the club-head fails to come through easily, and both length and control are lost.

Body Movement.
It is the same with malleable shots. Getting the club-head through before the body moves is the whole secret of accurate pitches to the pin. And it is with this shot that the golfer is most tempted to stiffen.

Putting, too, is a swinging of the club-head—not a push with the hands. The secret of getting the club-head through is the downward pull of the left hand that starts the downward swing.

If the downward swing is begun with the right hand, there is always a movement of the body—an active hit, as in a cricket stroke. This seriously prejudices the chances of getting the club-head through with a snap, and tends to "thump" it instead on the ground behind the ball. It is the swinging of the club-head on to the ball, followed by a snap of the wrists at impact, that makes the good shot.

A putt is not exactly the same. That is a right-handed stroke. Every other shot in golf is a left-handed stroke, at the beginning, at least.

The Sound Style.
Tenseness of the muscles of the shoulders prevents the club-head from getting through with a snap. There is too much conscious hit about the swing. This is not always a great disadvantage with an iron shot from a bad lie, but with wooden clubs it is nearly always fatal.

The knowledge that you have sound style brings confidence—and a sound style is obtained in only one way—by practice.

Above all, malleable practice is invaluable. The man who can achieve by malleable practice the knowledge that he can get out of a troublesome bunker as easily as he got into it is well on the road to success. The majority of American golfers are adepts at bunker play for the simple reason that their greens are invariably so closely guarded that even the best players are liable to find trouble. Thus they get that familiarity with bunkers which breeds contempt! Why should not we do the same?—(Sunday Herald Copyright.)

Coy.), Pte. H. M. Remedios (Portuguese Coy.), Pte. L. Roza Pereira (Portuguese Coy.), Pte. E. F. Selk (Anzac Coy.).

This event proved one of the major battles of the evening. Amidst cries of "Coo-ee" and "Come on Gosano" they were off on the first length which was performed with the breast-stroke. At the end of this length, Gosano had stolen a small lead from Selk, who, however, retaliated by leading from Gosano at the end of the second length with the side-stroke. Swimming the third length with a powerful back-stroke, Remedios challenged Selk's position, and succeeded in pushing to the fore. With the fourth length, which was swum in free style, excitement rose to fever-pitch. Roza Pereira, apparently from nowhere, showed a magnificent burst of speed, and gained a fifth of a second over Remedios to finish first in 78-3/5 secs. The closeness of the finish is indicated by the times of

Olympic Games

Though possessing brilliant men exponents, Japan has not been so successful in the women's events. Yesterday her 400-Metres relay team failed to qualify, and the American quartette broke the Olympic record by clocking 4 mins. 38 secs. Holland filled second position and Great Britain had to be content with third place.

Germany has for a long period held supremacy in international water polo and the recent incident which featured the semi-final game against Brazil did not upset the balance of her seven yesterday. Japan was outclassed from the commencement and were fortunate to concede but ten goals. In the semi-final game the Brazil players came to blows with the Police and were consequently disqualified from further participation in the Games. Germany won that match by 7 goals to 3 though they were alleged by the Brazilian players to have had the aid of the referee.

British Win.
H. R. A. Edwards and L. Olive, of Christchurch, Oxford, won for Britain her only triumph when they carried off the Coxless Pairs, beating the New Zealand Pair by a length in 8 minutes. The winners owed their selection to the fact that they won the Silver Goblets for the second year in succession at the Henley Regatta. Poland came third and Holland fourth in the Olympic event.

An exciting finish was provided in the Coxed Fours when the German crew just managed to beat the Italians by inches in 7 mins. 19 secs. Poland came third and New Zealand fourth. It was a magnificent spectacle 200 yards from the winning post, the two crews gliding along bow to bow despite the exhortations of their coxswains; and then that extra reserve which secured for the German a meritorious victory in the last ten yards.

America carried off the Coxed Pairs when her boat won in a paddle in the excellent time of 8 mins. 25.4/5 secs. Poland registered her third place when she came in second, and France and Brazil filled the third and fourth positions.

"Bobby" Pearce Again.
Bobby Pearce won a magnificent race against Bill Miller, in the Singles, coming home only three-quarters of a length ahead of his American rival in 7 mins. 44.2/5 secs. Douglas (Uruguay) was second and Southwood (Britain) third. Great Britain's representative was unfortunate to be attacked by cramp early in the race, but he pluckily continued to secure several points. Schwartz (Denmark) and Bariscony (Italy) much-fancied contenders, disappointingly failed.

Pearce has definitely announced that he will give up rowing now. Before yesterday's event he was uncertain, but now that he has concluded a sculling career without parallel, he has decided that he will retire and devote his time to training promising young oarsmen. Pearce worked out twice daily with Major Godsell, the challenger for the world's Professional Sculling title, before the Games, and declared that he considered the Long Beach course to be better than either Thomas or Parramatta courses.

AMERICANS CARRY ALL BEFORE THEM AT TENTH OLYMPIAD

FIELD AND TRACK SUPERIORITY

FINLAND LIE SECOND

ABSENCE OF REID AND RAMPLING'S POOR FORM HANDICAP BRITAIN.

CANADA'S GAME FIGHT

The detailed results of the track and field events at the Tenth Olympiad at Los Angeles reveal the amazing superiority of America.

On the track America won 6 of the 12 events and secured five second places and three thirds. Finland was second with two wins, a second and three thirds. Britain had a win, five seconds and a third.

In the field events the American superiority was even more pronounced. In the nine events American entrants secured 5 firsts, 4 seconds and 2 thirds. Finland was again second with a first and three seconds.

In the Ladies' events American competitors were successful on two occasions and supplied two seconds in the four track events. In the two field events the American women won both titles and secured a second place.

Below are the full results of heats and finals which took place from Thursday to Sunday.

CHINESE IDEALS AND RELIGIOUS BELIEFSATTITUDE TOWARDS
BIRTH CONTROLWEALTH, PROGENY AND LONGEVITY
THE SUM TOTAL OF HAPPINESS

The three ideals which every Chinese — be he China-born or Malaya-born — aspires to attain in this world are Wealth, Progeny and Longevity. Progeny ranks second in the order of importance in their estimation. Happiness is the sum total of these three blessings combined. In most Chinese homes, displayed in a conspicuous place, we may observe three porcelain statues representing well-known historical figures and symbolising these three wishes which serve not for purposes of worship but as models and ideals to live up to, writes H.J.S. in the "Malayan Chinese Review."

To most Chinese having an insight into the glorious past of Chinese achievements and traditions, these conjure up a vivid mental picture of the exemplary lives led by these personages and this frame of mind exerts a healthy reflex influence on the individual.

Though most Chinese, especially those born in Malaya, do not embrace any religion in particular, while many cannot define the faith they profess, yet it must be admitted that Chinese social institutions are founded principally on religious beliefs, pure and simple, which are handed down for generations as part of the legacy of their forebears.

Influence Of Confucius.
In our next issue we shall deal with the influence of Confucius and his teachings in the determination of Chinese character as these seem to us not within the purview of our subject. However, the essence of this instructive training has developed one of the most desirable attributes — the conscience with which all Chinese are endowed.

They say with Ruskin "The World's my country, my heart's my religion." Conglomeration of hero-worship, ancestor-worship, and worship of mythical figures in Chinese legends. We use the word "beliefs" advisedly to distinguish between beliefs and religion in its pure form. We aver that such beliefs do not constitute idolatry in the sense that they are paganism. Heathenism as practised by the cannibals of Africa is tabooed. The hereditary nature of the average Chinese is to give due deference and utmost respect to people, past and present, who have contributed to the progress of the world by their good deeds, virtues, preachings or writings.

From a comparatively young age the biographies of these great men are instilled into the minds of the Chinese, and we attribute their industry, honesty and keen sense of duty to this early training. However, the real worship is the worship of God, and the night of the eighth day of the Chinese first moon, i.e., seven days from the Chinese New Year, is set apart for doing honour to the Deity.

Inspired Courage.
As in culture, so in religion we have to differentiate between the educated and the illiterate masses. If Chinese religious beliefs have not produced anything of material benefit in the past, they have inspired courage into the hearts of their believers, restrained them from evil ways, taught them to be law-abiding citizens, and have dispensed solace to them in their distress. They have provided them with the energy for infinite devotion to duty and for taking pains which have become to them second nature.

In the establishment of a new business, one favourite deity is consulted and his image adored. But it is to God—the Supreme Being—to whom they turn for inspiration and guidance.

In the wilds of Malaya it is to one of these deities that they look for protection from illness and disease and for help, especially in the working of mines and the opening up of new estates. This particular deity is a venerable looking old man who is supposed to be the custodian of the wealth of the district favouring him who in his opinion deserves it. The Chinese idea is that no one, unless he is a fit and proper person, can ever dream of making a fortune. The chances of such a person are infinitesimal in so far as filial piety, honesty, gratitude, industry and charitable deeds are the only qualifications for the possession of wealth.

"Ill-gotten wealth soon falls into the hands of swindlers," is a favourite Chinese saying.

We now come to Progeny. It is a strong belief that a large family is the result of the performance of charitable deeds. Barrenness is a first punishment for unrighteous existence.

Large Families.
The wealthy seldom have many children, and this is usually associated with the fact that in their pursuit of riches they have unknowingly caused misery to the poor. In their dilemma they have invariably offered prayers to God in the hope that in his infinite goodness, he may make allowances in return for certain sacred vows undertaken to be performed. If any Chinese believe in the sanctity of natural phenomena imposed by Heaven, they can never attach credence to the practice of birth control. They firmly believe it is out of their control whatever they like it or not. Moreover, in China there is a favourite saying, "If one has many children, one cannot admit poverty." Another Chinese adage has it that, "there is a drop of dew for every blade of grass." Anyhow, the anxiety to find the wherewithal to provide for a large family encourages a man to work harder and may be the indirect cause of the enhancement of his station in life.

Longevity is looked upon as synonymous with wisdom. Chinese say "Respect the old, admire the learned." It is believed that a youth who is habitually disrespectful to his parents and his elders will soon die a premature death. Perpetrators of evil deeds usually meet with an untimely end through accidents or from fatal blows dealt by one of their ilk.

In this connection it may be mentioned that on any birthday "Mee" (Chinese noodle) is invariably served to guests signifying long life.

To sum up, although there is a movement on the part of the Chinese Government to suppress religious belief which is associated with superstition, there is a marked tendency on the part of Malayan Chinese to revive the Buddhist religion in particular.

Buddhism.
To our mind, progress in any shape or form in any country is impossible without a common belief. Religion is the mainstay of the exquisite beauty of Chinese moral life and the fragrance of chastity of Chinese women. Weighing the advantages and disadvantages, it seems to us evident that excess of religious belief soon overcomes a person in the pursuit of his material contributions to this world, as he is obsessed with the desire to resign to fate, while lack of religion produces the criminal, the unscrupulous swindler, and the unconscious worker, and causes eternal strife and chaos.

To one and all, we would urge that "Filial Piety and Gratitude ensure success in life."

ARREST.Chased In Harbour
By Police.

Leung Kwan Sze, 48, woman-owner of cargo boat No. 2563V was fined $10 and severely cautioned by Comdr. J. Newell, D. H. M. when she appeared in the Marine Court yesterday in answer to a charge of resisting arrest.

According to evidence, the woman's boat was one of six alongside the S.S. Fincal, and upon the appearance of the Police launch, she made off across the harbour. When overtaken, she refused to send a folk to the Police Station with her license or go herself, so she was put aboard the Police launch by force.

QUEEN'S THEATRE

THE QUEEN'S.

Daily at 2.30, 5.10, 7.15 & 9.20.

Showing To-day—"The Champ." Until you've seen Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper in this newest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film you haven't seen one of the greatest of all the talkies. It is a picture so thrilling, so majestically moving, that true immortality awaits it. Wallace Beery—never before so wonderful! Jackie Cooper—the boy star with heaven in his face! Coming shortly—"The Life of the Party" an all-colour Warner production that is funnier and faster than "Gold Diggers of Broadway."

THE STAR.

Special Time for "Trader Horn" 2.30, 5.00, 7.15 & 9.30. To-day to Wednesday—"Trader Horn," M-G-M's miracle production featuring Harry Carey, Edwin Booth and Duncan Renaldo. Thursday to Saturday—"Sporting Blood." Make no mistake—this is not "just another racing picture." It's a grand romance of a girl betrayed, and a horse sold to gamblers, and how a boy, played by the popular Clark Gable, brings them both back to the path of glory!

"THE CHAMP" ONE OF YEAR'S OUTSTANDING FILMS.

Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper Offer Stirring Portrayals.

The hero of "The Secret Six" plays the father of "Skippy" in a combination that is really an event of the screen season. Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper appear as two stars in a single picture in "The Champ," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production romance of sporting life and the human angle behind it, which is now showing at the Queen's Theatre.

Primarily it is a mighty drama of the love of a father and his son. There is a gripping element of human sacrifice. Surrounding this is comedy galore and the thrills of a Mexican border town, with its gambling, racing and prize fighting. Much of it was actually filmed in Mexico.

Beery is seen as a defeated fight champion, who has taken his small son to a border resort where he tries to achieve a comeback. To all others he is a "has-been," but to the boy, he is the greatest man on earth. And, when the times comes, the old fighter makes a sacrifice for the boy's future that proves him the best man of them all.

Pathos and Laughs.

King Vidor directed the picture, and his delicate human touches, intimate glimpses into real life and whimsical comedy handling are outstanding. Beery and Jackie both have some of the most dramatic scenes in their career in the amazing medley of thrills, pathos and laughs.

A notable cast appears. Irene Rich plays the divorced wife of the fighter and Roscoe Ates and Edward Brophy form a comedy team as the fight trainer and manager. Hale Hamilton, Jesse Scott and Marcia Mac Jones also score.

The dramatic jail episode, the fight with the Mexican police, the great prize fight, the thrilling race at Caliente, are among the highlights of the production and inside glimpses of a Mexican border town give it an authenticity that adds glamour.

T-O-DAY

At 2.30, 5.10, 7.15 and 9.20 p.m.

ONE OF THE GREATEST MOTION PICTURES EVER CREATED BY THE GENIUS OF MAN!

WHAT THE PRESS SAYS.

"A barrage of laugh-levs to the funny-bone, and a terrific wallop right to the heart—that's 'The Champ.'"

"The American."

When Wallace Beery and little Jackie Cooper appear in the same picture the combination should be enough to create an irresistible event in the cinema. "The Champ," presented last night at the Astor Theatre, is even better than that because King Vidor has directed it.

"The World Telegraph."

Young Jackie Cooper, the star of "Skippy," demonstrates in the new picture at the Astor Theatre that he is neither an accident nor merely a good child actor. Playing the loyal and adoring son of a drunken ex-champion of the prize ring, he proves by one of the finest and most knowingly sensitive portrayals of the recent cinema.

"The Herald Tribune."

WHAT THE PRESS SAYS.

A sentimental father-son story is elevated by stirring acting into something you shouldn't miss. Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper! What a combination! From Beery any fan would expect a performance as effective as this one he delivers as "The Champ."

But little Jackie Cooper is a spectacular revelation. Few adult actors could wring the emotional pressure out of a role which this youngster achieves. His dramatic scenes are heart-breakers. His charm is tremendously potent.

"The Daily Mirror."

Taking up the theme of father and son, "The Champ," a tale of a dilapidated, squint-eyed old ex-champion fighter, and his protective pug-nosed little son, offers matchless and warming performances by Wallace Beery and little Jackie Cooper.

"The Sun."

"The Champ" may be a male "Madame X" but as played by the remarkable Cooper and the lumbering Mr. Beery, it not only restores screen sentiment to the gold standard but also proves that unvarnished sentimentality, without shame or excuse, can be warmly effective.

"The Standard-Union."

TWO "WORKING GOILS," WHOM HEAVEN DIDN'T PROTECT.

"You may tempt your upper classes with your villainous demitasses, but heaven will protect your working girl!" sang a heroine from years back—but Flo and Dot dumbbell heroines played by Winnie Lightner and Irene Delroy in Warner Bros. natural colour comedy "The Life of the Party" coming shortly to the Queen's Theatre are not blessed with such sublime faith.

When they decide to do a little first-class gold-digging and need a wardrobe to do it in, they work on the good graces of M. Le Maire, owner of a Fifth Avenue gown shop. The poor man, not suspecting the wily two, gives them carte blanche in his shop, for clothes to wear at a party he is giving.

Flo and Dot have ideas of their own, however, and after gathering up full wardrobes they set sail for Havana and once there, form a gold-digging corporation.

This is only one situation in a rollicking comedy in which these two Broadway babies wisecrack their way through a series of uproarious mixups including a horse race with Flo as jockey—a jail jam and numerous roughneck attacks on unsuspecting sugar daddies.

There are several intriguing musical numbers. The cast includes Charles Judels, Charles Butterworth, Jack Whiting, Arthur Edmund Carew, John Davidson and Arthur Hoyt.

LOVERS COURAGEOUS COMING TO THE QUEEN'S.

Robert Montgomery and Madge Evans are the only non-English players in the cast of "Lovers Courageous," Montgomery's latest starring vehicle which will be shown shortly at the Queen's Theatre. The picture, based on an original story by Frederick Lonsdale, noted English playwright, is entirely British in locale and characterization and an English supporting cast was assigned so that there would be no inaccuracy in dialect and accents. Among the English players who appear in the picture are Roland Young, Frederick Kerr, Reginald Owen, Berry Mercer, Halliwell Hobbes, Alan Mowbray, Forrester Harvey and William Burreas.

REALISTIC FIGHTS IN "THE CHAMP."

Wallace Beery Scores as Battler in Powerful Queen's Drama.

Wallace Beery, the famous scorpion of "The Secret Six," Jackie Cooper, of "Skippy" fame, and King Vidor, director of "Street Scene," are the notable trio behind "The Champ," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's sensational drama of the Mexican border, which is now playing at the Queen's Theatre.

Beery and Jackie play father and son in the vivid new story, in which the redoubtable Beery is seen as a former fight champion, now down on his luck, living with his son in a border resort and trying to make a "come back."

Horse Racing Scenes.

Inner secrets of border gambling houses, of the "fift racket," exciting races at Caliente and other thrills abound in a gripping story. The narrative is by Frances Marion, author of "The Big House" and "Min and Bill."

Much of the production was filmed in Mexican locales. A notable cast appears, including Irene Rich as the mother, Roscoe Ates and Edward Brophy as the fight trainer and manager, respectively, Hale Hamilton, Jesse Scott and Marcia Mac Jones.

One of the big dramatic night-lights is a sensational prize fight in which Beery battles for a "come back" against Frank Hagney, former famous heavyweight of the ring. Another highlight is the meeting of Jackie and his mother in the paddock during the races at Caliente. Glimpses of the border resorts of Tia Juana and other border resorts are also given the audience.

HITLER'S BOLD BID FOR POWER CAUSES GERMANY UNEASINESS

NEW INSURRECTION BREAKS IN CHILE

COMMUNIST UPRISING IS SUPPRESSED

GOVERNMENT SECURE

EIGHT PERSONS KILLED AND THIRTY WOUNDED.

Santiago de Chile, Yesterday.

A state of seige was declared here following the Communist revolt, aimed at the restoration of Colonel Marmaduke Grove as head of the Military-Communist Junta, and there was severe fighting before the Government troops succeeded in dispersing the rebels.

Colonel Grove, son of a Cornish gentleman, and one-time virtual dictator of Chile, was deposed by the present Government faction shortly after he seized power in June last.

Today's revolt began when 400 students barricaded themselves in the university buildings and proclaimed a "civil republic." They were aided by Communists from all parts of the city. Two regiments of Government troops had to be summoned before the students, armed with machine guns and rifles, capitulated.

Eight persons were killed and 30 injured, most of them spectators.

Much damage was done to the University property.

The Davila Government issued a statement of assurance that all Communist disturbances will be rigorously suppressed and every protection given to private property. — Reuter.

TYPHOON FORMING.

The Royal Observatory's weather report for to-day states:—

Pressure is highest over the Pacific to the East of Japan and relatively low over China.

The typhoon appears to be nearly stationary about 150 miles to the South of Nagasaki.

There are indications of a typhoon, forming to the East of North Luzon.

Forecast:—S.W. winds, moderate; fine generally, some local showers.

Manila Warning.

A message from Manila states that a cyclone or typhoon is east of northern Luzon less than 300 miles distant, moving W.N.W.

SHANGHAI EDITORIAL LAUDS TERRORISTS

BOMB OUTRAGES OF "SKULL CORPS"

"TRAITORS TO CHINA MUST BE PUNISHED"

(From Our Own Correspondent).

Shanghai, Yesterday.

A new Anti-Japanese organisation, styled the "Skull Corps," existing for the purpose of punishing "traitors" to China, has commenced functioning by delivering a parcel containing a bomb to the Chinese Factory Owners' Association.

In connection with this outrage, the "China Times," a native newspaper, makes a remarkable comment on the situation.

Editorially, the newspaper urged the people of China not to forget the incident of January 28 simply because the guns are silent. The bombs, it adds, will serve to awaken the traitorous merchants of China who deal with the enemies of the nation. The senders of the bombs deserve the solemn respect of the people, the message adds.

For some time, now, various secret organisations have been sending bombs to various persons suspected of trading with Japan. The Nanking Government, of course, forbids such things and has promised to endeavour to suppress the terrorists.

The fact that a newspaper boldly approves the campaign of intimidation is considered by observers in Shanghai to be most significant. It is presumed that the Japanese will demand the suppression of the newspaper and a formal apology. It was the outgrowth of such incidents which led to the clashes in Shanghai which ultimately gave rise to actual warfare.

PREMIER AS NATIONAL HERO.

STRIKERS DISPERSED BY POLICE

Attempt To Prevent Bus Operations.

SHANGHAI INCIDENT.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Shanghai, Yesterday.

French Concession police put a quick stop to efforts of disgruntled workers of the Settlement Bus Company to intimidate the loyal staff and prevent their continuing their work.

The dispute between the Company and the workers has arisen out of wage disputes, and the Company has refused to reinstate the strikers.

When strikers attempted to molest the workmen on duty, police rushed amongst them and scattered them at once. The strikers made no resistance and contented themselves with calling out ineffectual threats from a safe distance.

TERRORISTS FIRE ON POLICE

European Wounded In Cawnpore.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Cawnpore, Yesterday.

A British Police Superintendent, R. N. Marsh had a narrow escape from death when police were rounding up local revolutionaries to-day. A terrorist fired at Marsh and missed, but the bullet wounded a Sub-Inspector.

Five shots were fired at police. Several arrests were made and firearms seized.—Reuter.

POPULAR AUTHOR KILLED

Car Accident Near Beauvais.

London, Yesterday.

Mr. Ronald Mackenzie Young, the author, whose first play, "Musical Chairs," is running successfully at the Criterion Theatre, London, was killed to-day in a motor accident near Beauvais, France.—British Wireless Service.

CRABS AND EELS WASHED UP ON SHANGHAI BUND.

Natives Rush To Gather Unexpected Harvest.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Shanghai, Yesterday.

Like manna from the skies, food for thousands has been strewn along the pavement of the Shanghai Bund.

The strange harvest came out of the Whangpoo River, and consisted of crabs and eels. These creatures did not arrive of their own volition but were washed out on the Bund by an exceptionally high tide. The Whangpoo is actually a tidal stream. Men, women and children eagerly gathered them in hundreds of baskets, and sold or consumed them.

THE HAPPY COUPLE.

MR. WANG'S RESIGNATION IS DEFINITE

Wife Certain Of His Decision.

CANNOT BE FOUND.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Shanghai, Yesterday.

Madame Wang Ching-wei has declared on behalf of her husband that his resignation is seriously meant and that further efforts to discover his secret hiding place and induce the withdrawal of his resignation are destined to prove futile.

Mr. Wang, until recently President of the Executive Yuan at Nanking, resigned in protest against China's national policy of non-resistance to Japanese encroachments upon Manchurian soil, at the same time charging that funds meant for the defence of the realm had been diverted by certain Northern leaders.

Since his resignation, the entire Nanking Cabinet has offered its resignation, largely as a gesture of sympathy for Mr. Wang. Mr. Wang did accomplish one thing he desired by his resignation. He forced Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang to resign, his command in Jehol.

Meanwhile, Marshal Chiang Kai-shek is endeavouring to bring back all the members of the Cabinet, including Mr. Wang. But the latter has vanished and his only words have been in terms of refusal to consider return to office.

MISS RATHSHAM IS VICTIM OF TYPHOID FEVER

Colony Daughter's Sudden Death.

Miss Phyllis Rathsham, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Rathsham, Kowloon, died at 7.15 o'clock last night at Matilda Hospital, the victim of typhoid fever.

Miss Rathsham, a most popular member of the younger set, was only recently graduated from the Diocesan Girls' School, Kowloon, and was proudly entering upon a business career. She had been employed only a week with Mustard and Company.

She leaves one brother, besides her parents, to mourn her passing. The funeral will leave the hospital this afternoon and pass the Monument at 5 o'clock.

NAZI CHIEF DENIED CHANCELLORSHIP

HITLER'S DEMANDS ARE BLUNTLY REFUSED

NEW GERMAN CRISIS

LEADERS' NEGOTIATIONS FAIL TO BRING COALITION.

Berlin, Yesterday.

Negotiations between Herr Von Hitler, Nazi Leader, Chancellor, Von Papen, General Von Schleicher and President Von Hindenburg have failed utterly. Herr Hitler demanded the Chancellorship of Germany, but the utmost the Hindenburg Government was prepared to concede were the Vice-Chancellorship and the Reich Premiership of Prussia.

Herr Hitler insisted in the final conversation with Herr Von Papen that the recent election had shown that Germany wanted him as Chancellor, and he, therefore, was unable to accept any other post.

He also demanded the portfolios of the Ministers of Interior and Defence for members of the Nazi party.

On these latter posts the Chancellor was prepared to negotiate, but Herr Hitler's insistence on the Chancellorship made further conversation impossible.

Afterwards Herr Hitler called on President Hindenburg, who similarly refused to concede the Chancellorship to the Nazi Chief.

Coalition Unlikely.

Berlin, Yesterday. The country has the tense feeling which accompanies the lull before a storm. The political situation, whilst the nation is awaiting the fateful meeting of Chancellor Von Papen and Herr Adolf Hitler next week, is particularly tense.

It is learned from reliable sources that Herr Hitler intends to refuse to join the Coalition with the Catholic Centre Party. He maintains his standpoint that he must be asked to form a Government with himself as Chancellor and other prominent Nazis holding other important Cabinet portfolios, which attitude, it is certain, will result in the breakdown of Coalition negotiations and the present Cabinet will continue in office—until challenged by a Reichstag's vote of confidence.

Meanwhile some blood-thirsty Nazi utterances tend to excite the people and upset the prevailing calm.

For example, the Nazi Premier of Oldenburg, addressing a protest meeting following the opening of a big, foreign chain store in the capital declared: "When the third Reich comes, certain people will be strung up for the crows to peck at."
